Collection Description

Biographical Note

Initially organized as the Southern Medical Training School in 1901, the school assumed the name International Medical Missionary College and Training School for Nurses in 1906, the same year as its first graduating class. The college remained in operation until 1908.

Scope and Content Note

The International Medical Missionary College and Training School for Nurses Papers consists of correspondence mostly between the president of the college, George D. Dowkontt and the secretary of the Board of Trustees, H. A. Etheridge, who would later become president. Also included is a completed application for intending students, donor slips, and reference inquiry forms.
