Collection Description

Scope and Content Note

This bound volume consists of seven hundred and fifty-nine pages containing twenty-one sermons and lessons. The texts are handwritten in ink on paper and address Biblical scriptures. There are numerous Latin and Greek quotations throughout. The identity of the author(s) is unknown, although the tone suggests an English writer with a Protestant affiliation. Page 755 lists the titles, page numbers, and relevant scriptures for each piece.

The binding of the volume is damaged and some items are bound upside-down. The handwriting is small and extremely difficult to read.

Emory Libraries provides copies of its finding aids for use only in research and private study. Copies supplied may not be copied for others or otherwise distributed without prior consent of the holding repository.
