Collection Description

Biographical Note

John Owen Smith, Methodist clergyman, bishop, and educator, was born 21 September 1902, in Johnston, South Carolina, and died 3 December 1978, in Atlanta, Georgia. He earned his divinity degree from Yale Divinity School, served in parishes in South Carolina (1954-1960), and was appointed bishop to the Atlanta Area of the United Methodist Church in 1960. During his tenure in Atlanta (1960-1972), racial integration of the North and South Georgia Conferences of the Methodist Church was accomplished. After his retirement in 1972, he taught part-time (1972-1976) in Emory University's Candler School of Theology.

John Owen Smith was married to Mildred Brown. They had two daughters.

Scope and Content Note

The papers of John Owen Smith document his years as a B.D. student at Yale Divinity School, his pastoral appointments in South Carolina, and his time as Bishop of the Atlanta area of the Methodist Church (later the United Methodist Church). The collection includes correspondence, subject files, sermons, and notebooks from all phases of Smith's career.

Smith presided over the Atlanta area during one of the most tumultuous phases of his church's history. In 1968 the Methodist Church merged with the Evangelical United Brethren Church. The terms of the merger required that the Central Jurisdiction (which consisted entirely of black churches) be abolished, and that all annual conferences be integrated. Smith's files, particularly his correspondence, illustrate the strong leadership he provided during the merger of the black Georgia Conference with the historically white North and South Georgia Conferences.

Series 2
Ministry in Georgia, 1957-1985, undated
Boxes 1-21

Scope and Content Note

Subseries 1 contains correspondence, most of which concerns church appointments and other routine congregational business. Some materials relate to race relations, communism, prayer in public schools, the Vietnam War, the "God is Dead" theology, and other 1960s controversies. The 1968 merger of the Methodist Church and the Evangelical United Brethren Church is also noted. Of particular interest is correspondence related to the 1972 General Conference in Atlanta. Rev. Cecil Williams of San Francisco had been invited to address the conference at an afternoon service held at First United Methodist Church. The minister of First United attempted to withdraw the church's invitation for use of their facility by the General Conference in response to controversy regarding Williams' ministry to the gay and lesbian community, drug users, and prostitutes. Bishop Smith insisted that, under the United Methodist connectional system, a minister did not have the right to refuse the use of church facilities to the General Conference. Smith's incoming correspondence documents the sharp criticism he received from many Georgia Methodists, and his responses to his critics illustrate his conviction that he had made the right decision.

Subseries 2 consists of subject files from Smith's years as bishop in the Atlanta Area. Many files concern administrative bodies of the North and South Georgia Conferences, including the Board of Education, the Board of Evangelism, and the Board of Missions. Other files concern the church's Southeastern Jurisdiction and national administrative units such as the General Board of Education. There are several folders of programs from church services and other events at which Smith spoke. Also included are a few files that document his post-retirement activities, such as the courses he taught at Candler School of Theology.

Scope and Content Note

The bulk of this series is comprised of sermons, many of which are undated. About half of the sermons are filed by topic. There are also drafts of Smith's two books: Give the Whole Gospel a Chance, published in 1974, and Letters in Turbulent Times, an unpublished manuscript on which he was working at the time of his death. Also included are notes and papers from Smith's time at Yale University Divinity School, where he earned a B.D. in 1925; manuscripts of columns written for the Wesleyan Christian Advocate; and notebooks kept by Smith throughout his career.
