Collection Description

Biographical Note
William Upton Richards, a Church of England clergyman, was born at Penryn, Cornwall on March 2, 1811 to William Richards and Elizabeth Rose Thomas. He studied at Exeter College Cambridge, earning the BA in 1833 and the MA in 1839. Richards worked in the manuscript department of the British Museum from 1833 to 1849, and was ordained in 1837. Shortly after his ordination, he was appointed assistant minister of St. Margaret’s Chapel in west London. He became minister of St. Margaret’s (later the parish of All Saints) in 1845.

Emory Libraries provides copies of its finding aids for use only in research and private study. Copies supplied may not be copied for others or otherwise distributed without prior consent of the holding repository.
Richards was a Tractarian and friend of E.B. Pusey. Pusey’s 1850 letter on the role of private confession in the Church of England was addressed to Richards.

Richards died at home in Regent’s Park on June 16, 1873, survived by his wife Caroline and their one daughter.

Scope and Content Note
This collection consists of two letters, dated 14 August and 18 August 1851, from Richards to W. Gresley, author of The Ordinance of Confession (1851). In the letters, Richards praises Gresley’s “most valuable little book...on Confession” and offers suggestions for improving it.
