Collection Description

Historical Note

Communion tokens were used in the Presbyterian Church as a means of permitting people to participate in the Lord's Supper. They were most frequently used in the Presbyterian Church in Scotland, but were also employed in England, Ireland, Canada, the United States, and Australia.

Scope and Content Note

The communion tokens collection is housed in one small artifact box. The tokens are well-preserved and several include inscriptions. For a complete inventory, see the container list below, which contains the contents of its obverse and reverse, as well as its origin, reference, and date.

Emory Libraries provides copies of its finding aids for use only in research and private study. Copies supplied may not be copied for others or otherwise distributed without prior consent of the holding repository.

Arrangement Note

Arranged by location of origin, then alphabetically.
