Collection Description

Biographical Note

Ferdinand I (1503-1564) became the king of Bohemia and Hungary in 1526 and later became the Holy Roman Emperor in 1556. He held these positions until his death in 1564.

Scope and Content Note

This broadside containing legislation prohibiting the teaching of Protestant theology was issued by King Ferdinand I of Hungary and Bohemia (later Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire). The law effectively banned the establishment of Protestant seminaries (that were springing up across Central Europe and allowed only the teaching of the Catholic Church in Habsburg territories.
