Collection Description

Biographical Note
Conrad Potter Aiken (August 5, 1889 August 17, 1973), poet and critic, was born in Savannah, Georgia, one of three sons of William Ford Aiken, a physician and surgeon, and Anna Potter Aiken. Aiken spent his early years in Savannah, but at the age of eleven, upon the deaths of his parents, went to live with a great, great aunt in New Bedford, Massachusetts. He was educated at Middlesex School in Concord, Mass., and Harvard University, receiving his A.B. degree in 1912.

Aiken's first book, Earth Triumphant and Other Tales, a collection of poems, appeared in 1914. During his long career, he published forty-two volumes of verse, fiction, and criticism. Although known primarily as a poet and critic, Aiken's published works included five novels and several volumes of short stories. He wrote columns and reviews for magazines and newspapers, among them The New Republic, The New Yorker (under the pseudonym Samuel Jeake, Jr.), and the Chicago Daily News. His list of literary honors and awards includes the Pulitzer Prize in 1930 for the best volume of verse published in 1929, the National Book Award in 1954 for his Collected Poems, and the Gold Medal of the National Institute of Arts and Letters in 1958. Aiken was poetry consultant to the Library of Congress, 1950-1952. In April 1973, he was named Poet Laureate of Georgia.

Aiken married Jessie McDonald in 1912; they were divorced in 1929. In 1930 he was married to Clarice Lorenz (divorced, 1937), and in 1937 to Mary Augusta Hoover. There were three children from the first marriage. After living most of his life in New England and England, Aiken returned to Savannah in 1962 to make his home there. He died in Savannah on August 17, 1973, and was buried in Bonaventure Cemetery. Biographical information was taken from Frederick J. Hoffman, Conrad Aiken (Twayne, 1962); Who Was Who in America, vol. VI, 1974-1976: Contemporary American Authors, v. 5-8; and the obituary in the Atlanta Journal, August 18, 1973.

Scope and Content Note
This small group of Conrad Aiken letters and notes includes 2 TLS from Aiken to "Mr. Cole" (September 27 and October 14, 1951); 9 TLS and 1 postcard from Aiken to Arthur A. Cohen of Meridian Books (May 4, 1958-August 10, 1959); 1 TLS from Aiken to Mary...
Louise Vincent of World Publishing Company (1962); 5 TLS from Aiken to J. Edgar Simmons, (1964-1968) and 1 typed note (3 lines), signed.

The two earliest letters relate to Aiken's service as a judge for the National Book Award in 1951. The letters to Arthur Cohen, 1958-1959, mainly concern publications and publishing prospects, with occasional personal news. In a letter of June 14, 1958, Aiken queries Cohen about a possible reissue of The Reader Over Your Shoulder by Alan Hodge, Aiken's son-in-law, and Robert Graves. A letter of June 18, 1958, relates to publication of A Reviewer's ABC (Meridian Books, 1958). On April 18, 1959, Aiken explores the possibility for publication of a "collected poems" and in a letter of August 10 discusses the future, publication of a volume of his collected short stories. Other letters mention reviews and reviewers, royalties, writers, and various publishing negotiations.
