Collection Description

Biographical Note

James Baldwin was born on August 2, 1924, in Harlem, New York. The oldest of nine children, he suffered from poverty and a troubled relationship with his strict, religious stepfather. At age 14, Baldwin became a preacher at a small church in Harlem. Baldwin graduated from high school in 1942 and eventually moved to Greenwich Village. His focus shifted from religion to writing, and he became involved with other writers of the time, including Richard Wright. In 1948, fed up with America's racism and homophobia, Baldwin moved to France, where he gained enough distance to write about the America he knew. Baldwin began living part-time in New York in 1957 and became an active participant in the civil rights movement. In the early 1960s, he moved back to the United States and continued to be an important voice for equality and universal brotherhood through his writing and his activism. Baldwin died of stomach cancer on December 1, 1987, in St. Paul de Vence, France.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of correspondence from James Baldwin to David Moses from 1971-1983. Moses is a stage, film and television actor who was a close friend of Baldwin for thirty years. They met at a party when Moses was twenty-one. From then on, Baldwin served as friend, mentor, and confidante to Moses. Baldwin included Moses in the dedication of his book Just Above My Head. The letters from Baldwin to Moses span more than a decade and address personal and professional matters, including Baldwin's current writing projects, as well as his health. The letters also offer insight into the creative, financial, and political challenges of writing and publishing.
