Collection Description

Biographical Note

Simon Baruch, physician, was born in Schwensen, Germany (now part of Poland), 29 July 1840, and died in New York City, 3 June 1921. He attended German schools and received a degree from the Medical College of Virginia (1862); was surgeon for the Confederate Army (1862-1865); and practiced in Camden, South Carolina, until 1881, then in New York. He was the Chairman of the South Carolina Board of Health (1880) and was the author of books on the use of hydrotherapy. He married Isabel Wolfe in 1867.

Emory Libraries provides copies of its finding aids for use only in research and private study. Copies supplied may not be copied for others or otherwise distributed without prior consent of the holding repository.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of lecture notes, casebook, and a letter.

Lecture notes are from lectures Baruch delivered at the Medical College of South Carolina, 1860-1861; at the back of the casebook are a register of deaths (1866-1869), and a register of cases (1866-1869). Letter is from B.M. Baruch to K.M. Read (1927).
