Collection Description

Biographical Note
Thomas Stuart Birch (April 26, 1840-August 8, 1862), son of William Birch of Saylorville, Iowa, enlisted November 22, 1861, as a member of Company D, 2nd Iowa Infantry Regiment.

Scope and Content Note
This collection consists of four small pocket-size diaries and three letters and a typescript copy of both diaries and letters. The diaries (November 1861-August 1862) document Birch's activities and movements during his service in the United States Army's 2nd Iowa Infantry Regiment particularly at the Battle of Shilo. The letters (August 1862) are to Birch's father, William Birch, from officers and the chaplain of the 2nd Iowa, after T.S. Birch's death.

<td>January 7, 1862 - March 24, 1862. Birch relates experiences in camp. On February 10, 1862 his regiment began the trip down the Mississippi and up the Cumberland to Ft. Donelson, which they reached on February 14 in tire to take part in the battle. On March 7 they moved on to Camp &quot;McCluton&quot; and then up the Tennessee River to camp across from Savannah on the 15th.</td>
