Collection Description

Biographical Note
John Herman Blake was born in Mount Vernon, New York, on March 15, 1934, one of seven children raised by single mother Lylace E. Blake. He is married to Dr. Emily Moore. He served in the United States Army during the Korean War, then attended college on the G.I. Bill, studying sociology at New York University. He received his master's degree and Ph.D., both in sociology, from the University of California at Berkeley. In 1966, he began work at the University of California at Santa Cruz (UCSC) as Assistant Professor of Sociology; he was the first African American on the university's faculty. He was an expert witness for the defense during Huey P. Newton's 1968 trial for the killing of Oakland, California, police officer John Frey. In 1972, Blake was founding provost of Oakes College, a residential college on the campus of UCSC focusing on diversity and social justice education. From 1984-1987, he was President of Tougaloo College (Tougaloo, Mississippi) and has held teaching and administrative positions at such institutions as Swarthmore College (Swarthmore, Pennsylvania), Indiana University (Bloomington, Indiana), and Iowa State University (Ames, Iowa). In addition to his scholarship on Huey P. Newton and the Black Panther Party, Blake is an expert on the Gullah culture of South Carolina and Georgia and has served as Scholar in Residence and Director of the Sea Island Institute at the University of South Carolina.

The Black Panther Party was founded in October 1966 by Huey P. Newton and Bobby Seale. It was a black nationalist and socialist off shoot of the Black Power Movement. Originally called The Black Panther Party for Self-Defense, it advocated armed citizen patrols of black neighborhoods and resistance to police brutality and misconduct in those communities. The Party also organized numerous "survival programs" including the Free Breakfast for Children program, medical clinics and testing, classes on politics and economics, and transportation programs. A philosophical rift between Newton and Eldridge Cleaver in 1971 divided the party and led to numerous chapter closures in 1972. Throughout the late 1970s, continuing legal troubles and violence within the organization caused additional fractures and loss of members, and the party formally disbanded in 1982.

Scope and Content Note
The collection consists of materials about the Black Panther Party from 1966-2010, primarily compiled by J. Herman Blake while co-writing Huey P. Newton's autobiography, Revolutionary Suicide. The collection is predominately interviews between Newton and Blake in which they discuss Newton's childhood, education, political awakening, personal philosophies and ethos of the Black Panther Party, and his trial for the killing of police officer John Frey. There are also interviews with Newton's family, including his parents Armelia and Walter, his brothers Melvin and Lee Edward, and his sisters Leola and Doris; Black Panthers James Carr, David Hilliard, Bobby Seale (interviewed by Don Freed), and John Seale; reporter Alex Hoffman; and college classmates Tommy and Tamara Reed. Unless otherwise noted, all interviews were conducted by Blake. There are additional recordings of Newton during press conferences, at speaking engagements at Yale University (New Haven, Connecticut) and Merritt College (Oakland, California), and on the radio. Many tapes also include recordings of Blake summarizing interviews that were not recorded or reflecting on his experiences during interviews. The earliest interviews between Newton and Blake were conducted while Newton was still in prison at California's Men's Colony and could not be recorded; the collection includes Blake's notes, made afterward and verified by Newton at subsequent meetings.

Research and other files contain correspondence, printed material about Newton and the Black Panther Party, photographs, materials relating to the lawsuits The People v. Huey P. Newton and J. Herman Blake v. Stronghold Consolidated Productions, writings by Newton and others about the Panthers, and other articles by Blake about Newton and the Black Panthers. Correspondence relates to Blake’s work on Revolutionary Suicide, requesting interviews, editing the manuscript, and initial efforts to find a publisher for the book. There are additional letters to Huey P. Newton from Blake and others following Newton's release from prison. J. Herman Blake v. Stronghold Consolidated Productions was a breach of contract suit brought by Blake against Newton seeking payment of royalties following publication of Revolutionary Suicide and those materials include correspondence between Blake and his lawyers as well as court documents. Publishing files are comprised of correspondence between Blake and Harcourt, Brace, and World; drafts of the manuscript; notes and outlines; and other materials specifically related to writing and publishing Revolutionary Suicide.

Correspondence (significant), 1966-2002
Correspondence marked as important by Blake. Includes letters to and from Eldridge Cleaver, Alex Haley, Huey Newton, Betty Shabazz and others. The letter from Cleaver discusses his release from Soledad prison, the prison's African history and culture class, his job with Ramparts, and plans for publication of his book Soul on Ice. Correspondence with Alex Haley relates to Blake's request for advice on writing a biography. Other letters document requests for interviews or other information about Black Panther Party activities and experiences. Some letters originally in this file have been moved to the folder of publication correspondence as they relate directly to negotiating the publishing contract for Revolutionary Suicide.
