Collection Description

Biographical Note

Lucian C. Bullard was a member of Company E, 4th Vermont Infantry Regiment. He was apparently a resident of Bethel, Vermont. There is no indication of Bullard's occupation, or of whether he survived the war. He became a corporal in November 1863.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of a microfilm copy of one small pocket diary of Lucian C. Bullard with entries for the year 1863 and a typed transcript of the diary. A photograph of Lucian Bullard is also included. The entries in the diary are very brief and generally deal with the weather, events of the day, movements of his company, etc. Though brief, the entries give a picture of the day-to-day life of an ordinary soldier throughout one year of the war. He refers to military operations in which he participates but does not go into detail or attempt to describe them. He took part in the Battle of Gettysburg and operations in Virginia and Maryland during 1863. In March he went home on furlough. In August his regiment was sent to New York City; it returned to Virginia in September. The transcript of the diary seems to contain some errors in copying, but in general it conveys the sense of the original.
