Collection DescriptionBiographical Note

William S. Burroughs (1914-1997) was an American novelist, essayist, and writer of experimental fiction. A primary member of the Beat generation, he was an avant-garde author who affected postwar popular culture as well as literature. Born in St. Louis, Missouri, to Mortimer Perry Burroughs and Laura Hammon Burroughs (née Lee), William graduated from Harvard University in 1936. While studying medicine in Vienna, Austria, in 1937 he married Ilse Klapper, a German-Jewish refugee to help her escape to America; they never lived as a married couple and divorced in 1946. At that time, Burroughs was living in Greenwich Village, New York City, with Jack Kerouac and Allen Ginsberg and was romantically involved with Joan Vollmer. Burroughs and Vollmer had one son together, William Burroughs, Jr., and lived together until her death in 1951.

In 1959, Burroughs became involved with the Church of Scientology, going "clear" during an intensive two-month course in 1968. Throughout the decade that he was a member, Scientology heavily influenced his writing, including his cut-up technique in which a text is cut up and rearranged to create something new. He quickly became disillusioned with the organization after attaining "clear" status, primarily due to the church's security procedures and his negative opinion of L. Ron Hubbard. He was expelled later in 1968.

Burroughs is known for the books Junkie (1953) and Naked Lunch (1959), among many other works of fiction and nonfiction. Naked Lunch was notably the subject of an obscenity trial before its publication in the United States in 1962. Burroughs settled in Lawrence, Kansas, in 1981, where he continued to write and collaborate with other authors and musicians. He died there in 1997.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of correspondence, artwork, writings, printed material, and audiovisual material by and about William S. Burroughs from circa 1950-2004. Some files in the collection were labeled in Burroughs's hand; the original folders have been retained and their contents left in their original order. Original titles, when present, have been transcribed and the files are identified in the container list. Correspondence primarily consists of letters between Burroughs and figures such as Brion Gysin, Alex Trocchi, Claude Pelieu, Mary Beach, and Richard Aaron, as well as letters to Burroughs from Dick Seaver, Peter Matson, Claude Pelieu, Henry A. Sofeico, Jr., Richard Aaron, Tom Veitch, Udo Berger, Jann Wenner, Jan Herman, Allen DeLoach, Daniel Halpern, and Malcolm McConnell. In his letters, particularly to Pelieu and Beach, Burroughs speaks frequently about his disillusionment with the Church of Scientology. Other topics include the film adaptation of Naked Lunch, requests for Burroughs to review books and other works, and the construction and placement of his archive. Letters from Udo Berger also occasionally include poems. Additional correspondence contains letters to Brion Gysin from Burroughs's long-time assistant James Grauerholtz which discuss Burroughs's publishing efforts and travel schedule, films including a possible adaptation of Junkie starring David Bowie, and the planning of the Nova Convention.

One notable element of the collection is an alphabetical accordion file, unlabeled by Burroughs but with a photograph of an empty chair pasted to the front cover. The everyday file and fast sorter includes correspondence, financial records such as hotel bills and receipts, artwork by unidentified artists, business cards, writings by others that were sent to Burroughs, and printed material such as flyers for events. Materials are in original order, which is roughly alphabetical. Of particular interest may be a 1964 issue of "The Burrough" in folder C; the newsletter has had a portion of one column cut out.

Artwork in the collection consists of paintings and sketches by Burroughs. Writings primarily contain typescript drafts of Burroughs's short stories, cut-ups, and fragments from his books Naked Lunch and Interzone. There is a dream journal from 1968, as well as typed notes about his dreams. There are also proofs, a corrected typescript, and the publisher's correspondence and records from the publication of Bradford Morrow's edition of Doctor Benway. Edits to the typescript were made on the outside of plastic sleeves that originally held the pages. The pages have been removed from the sleeves for their protection; the sleeves have been retained, though the editing marks are very faint.

Printed material includes advertisements, flyers, invitations, newsletters, posters, and other items relating to Burroughs. Some items document readings or other events in which Burroughs participated, however most of this material relates to publications or events about Burroughs, including bibliographies of his work, catalogs advertising sale of Burroughs's books or manuscripts, and inventories of collections of Burroughs's archives. Audiovisual material in the collection is predominantly recordings of the Naropa Summer Institute Writing Program's, William Burroughs Conference held in 1985.

The final portion of the collection consists of correspondence and other documents from Robert Jackson, a prominent collector of William Burroughs material. Correspondence in this section is mostly from Ted Morgan to Jackson regarding access to Jackson's collection for research and publication of Morgan's Literary Outlaw; there is an autographed photocopy of this work. This section also includes documentation of Jackson's acquisition of Burroughs material and the 1984 purchase agreement between Jackson and Arizona State University for a portion of his Burroughs collection.
