Canterbury University College, New Zealand; and Selwyn College, Cambridge (Honorary Fellow, 1958)

He served as Rector of Lincoln, New Zealand (1922); Warden of St. Barnabas Theological College, South Australia (1924-1927); Speaker at Melbourne Church Congress (1925); Dean of Divinity Bishop's University, Quebec (1927); Bishop of Quebec (1935-1944); Archbishop of Quebec and Metropolitan of the Province of Canada (1944-1960).

Carrington was also the author of fourteen publications: The Boy Scouts Camp Book (1918), Christian Apologetics in the Second Century (1921), Scoutcraft in the Church (1921), The Soldier of the Cross (1925), The Sign of Faith (1930), The Meaning of the Revelation (1931), The Road to Jerusalem (1933), The Pilgrim's Way (1937), The Primitive Christian Catechism (1941), A Church History for Canadians (1947), The Story of Christ (1957), The Early Christian Church (1957), According to Mark (1960), The Anglican in Church in Canada (1963).

Philip Carrington married Gwendolen Smith in 1919. They had no children. Carrington died 3 October 1975. Biographical source: Who Was Who, 1971-1980.

Scope and Content Note

The Philip Carrington collection consists mainly of a corrected typescript of an apparently unpublished work entitled "We Are Also Men: An Old-Fashioned Historical Novel in the Vulgar Tongue". This typescript, divided into twelve subtitled chapters, is undated. Also included in this collection is a two page holograph letter written by Albert F. Lutely, Cambridge, to Philip Carrington, dated 23 March without a year designation.

Arrangement Note

Primarily arranged by chapter.
