Collection Description

Biographical Note

Pauline Pierce Corn, writer and genealogist, was born in Austell, Georgia on December 6, 1896, the daughter of Wilds Lovick and Zula Lewis Pierce. The Pierces were an established and venerated family of Methodist ministers from the state of Georgia. Indeed, her paternal grandfather, George Foster Pierce, was a Methodist minister and President of Emory College from 1848-1854. The Pierce family was the subject of much of Pauline Pierce Corn's genealogical research. In 1918 Pauline Pierce received her A.B. degree from Wesleyan College in Macon, Georgia. On July 3, 1918 she married Ernest Corn, a graduate of the 1916 Class of Medicine at Emory and a physician in Macon, who had served with the U.S. Medical Corps in France during World War I. The Corns had five children: Ann, Lovick Pierce, Thomas Lewis, Susan, and Charles Philip. During her life in Macon, Pauline Pierce Corn served on many civic and benevolent organizations such as the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Macon Writers, the Wesleyan College Alumnae Trustees, and the altar guild of the Methodist Church. Pauline Pierce Corn died in 1987.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of the papers of Pauline Pierce Corn from 1878-1966. The collection contains correspondence, writings, a diary, and genealogical research material dating back to the 18th century. The correspondence includes letters to Pauline Pierce from Ernest Corn, 1917-1918; general correspondence to Pauline Pierce Corn, 1919-1920, 1923, 1955, and correspondence to her father, Wilds Lovick Pierce, from his family, 1893-1913. The collection also includes some writings of Pauline Pierce Corn, including a small diary from 1919, as well as collected material relating to his Ernest Corn's medical career. Genealogical research material collected by Pauline Pierce Corn and members of her family relates to the Pierce, Lovick, Culpepper, and collateral families, dating back to the 17th century. The types of research material include notebooks and loose scraps of notes, correspondence, essays, Daughters of the American Revolution applications, photos of headstones, and some collected printed material.

Arrangement Note

Arranged by record type.
