Collection Description

Biographical Note
During a twenty-five year period, Raymond Danowski assembled what is thought to be the largest 20th century poetry library in private hands. Upon its arrival at Emory, it has come to be known as the Raymond Danowski Poetry Library. The Library is a 75,000-volume collection of rare and first editions of modern and contemporary poetry, in addition to literary journals, broadsides, manuscripts, audiovisual materials, and even objects.

Scope and Content Note
The collection consists of various materials collected by Raymond Danowski as part of the Raymond Danowski Poetry Library. The materials include author files containing manuscripts and typescripts of works, broadcast and film scripts, correspondence, and other materials related to individual authors mainly from the 1960s-1970s. The photograph series primarily contains photographs of many of the authors whose work is represented either in the Author Files series or in the published works contained in the Danowski Poetry Library. The majority of the posters document the 1994 South African election or the 1960s-1970s counterculture.

Arrangement Note
Organized into eight series: (1) Author files, (2) Photographs, (3) Posters, (4) Counterculture materials, (5) Irish Troubles material, (6) Printed material, (7) Audiovisual material, and (8) Unprocessed material.

Series 8: Unprocessed material
Series 1
Author files, circa 1935-1988

Scope and Content Note
The Author Files series contains manuscripts and typescripts of works, broadcast and film scripts, correspondence, and other materials related to individual authors whose work spans numerous decades. However, the primary decades represented in the series include the 1960s and 1970s. Many Beat poets, including Allen Ginsberg, Michael McClure, and Charles Bukowski, are represented, as are contemporary poets such as the Nobel Laureate Seamus Heaney.

Highlights of the series include a typescript of Robert Bly's acceptance speech for the National Book Award; the first version of Charles Bukowski's film script Barfly, along with three subsequent versions; correspondence, typescripts, and interview notes written by or relating to William Burroughs; materials by William Everson; a corrected typescript of the poem "An Invocation" by Seamus Heaney; correspondence by and to Ted Hughes, as well as a signed manuscript of his poem "O Little Blood"; a revised typescript of Endecott and the Red Cross by Robert Lowell; typescripts of poems by Muriel Rukeyser; correspondence by and to Richard Wilbur; and finally, correspondence and typescripts by William Carlos Williams. The materials included in this series represent the breadth and depth of Danowski's collection and are supplemented by the photographs and printed materials contained in additional series. Some items in this series were found laid in books from the Raymond Danowski Poetry Library; if so, a print of the catalog record is included with the item.

Arrangement Note
Arranged in alphabetical order.

Series 2
Photographs, circa 1937-1985

Scope and Content Note
The photographs series primarily contains photographs of many of the authors whose work is represented either in the Author Files series or in the published works contained in the Danowski Poetry Library. A large number of photographs are by the Irish photographer John Minihan, who is famous for his series of photographs of Samuel Beckett. The series contains nine photographs of Beckett, including one large print by Minihan, as well as images of W.H. Auden, William Burroughs, Allen Ginsberg, and Derek Walcott, among others. Also of note are two photographs of W.B. Yeats reading at the BBC and a large series of photographs of art installations created by Ian Hamilton Finlay.

Regarding all four tapes of the Berkeley Poetry Conference: "Recording(s) on Scotch brand/3M reels, with printed information stickers on the cases and the tapes. Although issued in an official way by the Language Laboratory, it seems unlikely that the reels would have had much if any commercial life, and their format might imply that they were made to order. It is also not specified that they were made in the year of the conference itself, although clearly they are contemporary. A landmark gathering, the Berkeley Poetry Conference was a dynamic programme of readings, lectures, and seminars."

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
"60 minute vintage cassette by WSB [Burroughs] made in the middle to late 1960s (date evidence is Vic Damone song, Selma news reference from 1965, tape process similar to FAMED reading held in April 1965 in NYC--this is probably from around that point--number of radio stations are NYC), tape itself which was in use from middle 60s on. Title is "Port of Saints" (but I think I may have supplied--based on parts of scrapbook that was used in the making of "Port of Saints.") WSB reading his own writings from a variety of sources interspersed with radio broadcasts and static. Quite similar in feel to his scrapbooks. I purchased from William, circa 1971. Sound quality excellent and the effect of auditing is quite similar to the experience of sitting down with a Burroughs scrapbook. Some of the content almost certainly came from the scrapbook that was the basis of "Port of Saints." That book came about as a result of a transcription that I made of one of William's 1960s scrapbooks. I delivered the transcription to William and the next day he called me and told me that he was prepared to publish after some shuffling of the text. So the Covent Garden/Am Here Books first edition was a result."

Ginsberg, Allen and Gregory Corso, "Beatniks at the University," KPFA recording, 1959 August [original: reel to reel]

"Sound quality excellent. Remarkable recording, a number of poems seem to be uncollected. Poetry reading before a student audience at the University of Chicago. This is not the famed "Howl" reading that was in Chicago earlier in the year as a benefit for Big Table."

Hollo, Anselm and Nathaniel Tarn, poetry reading, circa 1970 [original: reel to reel]

"Sound quality not great. Tape begins with public reading by Ansel Hollo. Then Tarn reads starting with "Beautiful Contradictions." Reading ends 2/3 of the way through the tape. He mentions that the book had just been published in the United States for the first time, so that would be 1970. I do find a mention of an April 15, 1970 reading by the two poets at the University of Notre Dame. It is quite possible this is a recording of that event. On the box this is described as tape number 2 and it is quite likely that the first part of Anselm Hollo's reading is not present."
Maclise, Angus and Hetty, Tony Conrad, and Elsyn, "New Jersey tapes," 1968 August [original: reel to reel]

Maclise, Angus and Hetty, and Raj (Loren Standlee), "Invasion of the Thunderbold Pagoda," undated
"Title supplied by me but unmistakable with "Maya" section. High quality sound. This is a variant of the work, presumably an outtake. From the Ira Cohen archive, purchased by me in 1971. Retained after sale of the archive. Laid into box is a slip with Ira Cohen address and note stating, 'for B-wind Ekta Master.'"

Rexroth, Kenneth, KPFA edited excerpts, 1957 March 30 [original: reel to reel]
"A blistering attack on Ezra Pound. Unclear if this was ever broadcast. Quality of tape sound is poor--this may have been salvaged at the time due to the stridency of the argument."

Sanders, Ed, reading at Atlier East, 1966 February 2 [original: reel to reel]
"Recording made by Paul Blackburn. Excellent sound quality. Sanders had recently had his Peace Eye store busted for pornography and at the end of the reading he gives a long and interesting report on what had happened. The Paul Blackburn tapes are at the University of California, San Diego--where there are four other Sanders tapes of the period. This is one that escaped. A highly important artifact from the 1960s. He announces that the FUGS first album was out and after one month had already sold 10,000 copies--a phenomenal success for a Folkways issue."
