Collection Description

Biographical Note
Ophelia DeVore-Mitchell (1922-), African American model and business woman, was born in Edgefield, South Carolina or August 12, 1922. Her parents were John Walter DeVore, who was of German and French descent, and Mary Emma Strother, of Native American and African American heritage. In 1933, DeVore was sent to New York City to live with her aunt and complete her education. She graduated from Hunter College High School and attended New York University.

DeVore began modeling in 1938 at the age of 16 and worked primarily for Ebony magazine. In 1941 she married Harold Carter, with whom she had five children. The couple eventually divorced. In 1946, she and four friends co-founded Grace del Marco Models, which represented such notable figures as Diahann Carroll, Richard Roundtree, Cicely Tyson and Helen Williams. The agency sought to encourage media to portray African-Americans in non-stereotypical ways.

DeVore married publisher Vernon Mitchell in 1968. He passed away in 1972, but she continues to operate his newspaper, the Columbus Times.
