Collection Description

Biographical Note

Theodore Draper (1912-2006), writer on twentieth century international affairs, was born in Brooklyn, New York to Samuel and Annie Draper. He was educated at Brooklyn College (B.S.S. degree). His writing career in the 1930s and early 1940s included a brief term as editor of the National Student League publication, Student Review (1934) and editor of the literary arts magazine, New Masses (circa 1940s). He also wrote for the Daily Worker and the TASS News Agency.

Draper also wrote extensively on international affairs for publications such as Commentary, New Leader, New Republic, Encounter, Dissent and Political Science Quarterly. His books include: The Six Weeks' War (1944), The 84th Infantry Division in the Battle of Germany, November 1944-May 1945 (1946), The Roots of American Communism (1957), American Communism and Soviet Russia (1960), Castro's Revolution (1962), Castroism: Theory and Practice (1965), Abuse of Power (1967), The Dominican Revolt: A Case Study (1968), Israel and World Politics: Roots of the Third Arab-Israeli War (1968), The Rediscovery of Black Nationalism (1970), A Very Thin Line : The Iran-contra Affairs (1991), and A Struggle for Power : The American Revolution (1996).

Draper is perhaps best known for his historical studies of the American Communist Party. In 1953, the Fund for the Republic commissioned a multi-volume study of Communist influences in American society. Draper was asked to write a history of the American Communist Party from 1919 to 1945. He intended to write a one-volume work concentrating on the years 1930 to 1945. He became convinced, however, of the importance of documenting the origins of the party and his project was expanded beyond the one volume originally planned. His two books, The Roots of American Communism and American Communism and Soviet Russia deal with the years 1919-1929. He began work on the third volume, covering the 1930-1945 period, but turned to other projects and never completed it.

Draper was a research fellow at the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace (1963-1974) and a member of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton (1968-1973). He was also a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, and served as consultant to the Twentieth Century Fund.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of the research files of Theodore Draper from 1919 to 1990. The collection is comprised mostly of subject files and recorded interviews Draper collected during the course of his research on the history of American Communism, primarily those collected for the projected third volume, never completed, covering the period since 1930. The materials in this collection document the history of the American Communist Party, 1930-1945, and, to a lesser extent, American Communism from 1919-1929, as well as the individuals (primarily Earl Browder, General Secretary of the Communist Party, 1930-1945) who were active in party affairs, particularly for the later period.

Among the materials that Draper collected are taped interviews with Earl Browder, James P. Cannon, Joseph Starobin, "Manuel Gomez", and Josephine Truslow Adams as well as summaries, notes from and/or transcripts of interviews with the following individuals: Max

Bedacht, Robert Bendiner, Herbert Benjamin, John Brophy, Esther Corey, Frank Crosswaith, Samuel Darcy, W. A. Domingo, John Frey, William Goldsmith, Robert F. Hall, J. B. S. Hardman, Granville Hicks, Sidney Hook, L. E. Katterfield, Jay Lovestone, Lewis Merrill, Richard J. Moore, David Ramsey, Reid Robinson, Joel H. Rogers, James Rorty, Nat Ross, Edward Welsh, Jacob Spolansky, Bertram Wolfe and Charles S. Zimmerman. In addition, there are internal party documents (some original, some photocopies); minutes of Central Executive Committee and Political Bureau meetings; a collection of almost 1,000 pamphlets; and party and other radical periodicals. Also present are correspondence and writings of party figures including, in addition to Browder, Max Bedacht, Herbert Benjamin, Alexander Bittelman, James Cannon, Eugene Dennis and Vincent R. Dunne.

Many of the materials in Series 1, American Communism research files, were acquired by Draper from individuals whom he interviewed. Numerous photocopies and original items have been labeled by Draper as "Wicks material," "Lovestone material," "Browder material," or "Zimmerman material." These designations identify either the source or the general subject to which the material relates. During the course of his research, Draper interviewed the widow of Harry Wicks, who allowed Draper to use documents in her possession from her husband's files; some she gave to him outright. These are designated "Wicks materials." "Lovestone material" refers to items relating to the group led by party leader Jay Lovestone and their expulsion from the party in 1929. Much of the Lovestone material was acquired (in original or photocopied form) by Draper from individuals interviewed. In some cases, Draper made typed copies or transcribed portions of the manuscript. These are so designated. Material designated "Browder material" came from Earl Browder; Browder items photocopied from the Browder Collection at Syracuse are identified. Photocopies from collections in other repositories are so labeled; sources for other material have been noted whenever possible.

Series 2, Iran-Contra Affair research files, consists of research material for Draper's book A Very Thin Line: The Iran-contra Affairs (1991). Materials include transcripts of the federal trials of Oliver North and John Poindexter; photocopies of Oliver North's private diary used as evidence in his trial; other memoranda and documents used as evidence in the Iran-Contra Affair; and printed material.

Draper gathered this material for research purposes; his personal papers are not included in the collection. Draper's filing arrangement has been maintained for the most part, except where files had obviously become disarranged.

Arrangement Note

Organized into four series: (1) American Communism research files, (2) Iran-Contra Affair research files, (3) Audiovisual, and (4) Unprocessed additions.

Subseries 1.2

American Communist Party (1930-1945), 1919-1975

Boxes 6 - 18

Scope and Content Note

The subseries consists of material relating to the American Communist Party from 1930-1945. This material was collected by Draper as research for the unfinished third volume of his history of American Communism. Materials include party documents, subject files, as well as correspondence, notes and files relating to the writing of the book. Numerous photocopies and original items have been labeled by Draper as "Wicks material," "Lovestone material," or "Zimmerman material." These designations identify either the source or the general subject to which the material relates. During the course of his research, Draper interviewed the widow of Harry Wicks, who allowed Draper to use documents in her possession from her husband's files; some she gave to him outright. These are designated "Wicks materials." "Lovestone material" refers to items relating to the group led by party leader Jay Lovestone and their expulsion from the party in 1929. Much of the Lovestone material was acquired (in original or photocopied form) by Draper from individuals interviewed. In some cases, Draper made typed copies or transcribed portions of the manuscript. These are so designated.

Arrangement Note

Communist Party documents and Draper's notes are arranged in chronological order. Subject files are arranged in alphabetical order.

Series 2
Iran-Contra Affair research files, 1973-1990
Boxes 69-87

Scope and Content Note

The series contains materials collected by Draper during research for his book A Very Thin Line: The Iran-Contra Affairs (1991). Records include transcripts of the federal trials of Oliver North and John Poindexter; photocopies of Oliver North's private diary used as evidence in his trial; other memoranda and documents used as evidence during the Iran-Contra trials; and printed material. The bulk of materials document the unfolding of Reagan Administration aid to the Contra militias in Nicaragua at the time of its occurrence and in its aftermath, with a small amount of material on the activity of related figures prior to the Iran-Contra Affair. Of particular note are the Oliver L. North diaries, which added to the scandal for contradicting North's public statements on the integrity of the Contras, and their relationship with the illegal drug trade.

Arrangement Note

Arranged by record type.
