Collection Description

Biographical Note
John Edmondson (February 14, 1806-September 28, 1887) lived near Jefferson, a post-village of Rutherford County, Tennessee, 20 miles southeast of Nashville. In 1830, John married Amanda Randolph, a widow with two children, Peter and Sarah. John and Amanda had one daughter, Harriet Amanda, and six sons: William W. Edmondson (July 22, 1831-December 1864), Edwin Catesby Edmondson (December 4, 1833 - 1909), Robert Paine Edmondson (July 16, 1836 - March 8, 1926), Thomas Pinkney Edmondson (April 22, 1838 - 1924), George Thompson Edmondson (June 16, 1840 - 1924), and David Wendell Edmondson, the youngest, who was the only son not to serve in the Confederate Army. Edmondson was a tanner and farmer, owning a leather factory on his place. He was a member of the Smyrna Presbyterian Church and served as Elder of the Church for 40 years.

Scope and Content Note
The collection consists a microfilm copy of the papers of John Edmondson from 1806-1887. The papers include 128 letters, various official passes, and 1 small notebook. The majority of the letters are concerned with family matters and are written by members of the family or close friends. Four of the sons wrote letters while they were in the Confederate Army. William W. Edmondson served in Company A of the 21st Tennessee Cavalry (Carter’s). The letters of George T. Edmondson, who served in Company E of the 20th Tennessee Infantry Regiment, are mainly written while a prisoner of war at Fort Delaware. The letters of Robert Paine Edmondson, who served in Company B of the 9th Tennessee Cavalry Battalion, were written during the last two years of the war while he was a prisoner of war at Rock Island, Illinois. Thomas Pinckney Edmondson, who served in Company A, 2nd Tennessee Infantry Regiment, wrote only two letters, one to his brother William (October 17, 1861), in which he mentioned reports of a big fight at Manassas and his company being victorious. On November 12, 1861, Thomas writes to his father, telling him the enemy is camped 7 or 8 miles across the river. Edwin Catesby Edmondson (December 4, 1833 - 1909), served in Company F., 4th Tennessee Cavalry (McLemore’s).

Twenty-five of the letters were written by Thomas W. Edmondson, brother of John, a bachelor who lived at Holly Springs and with whom some of the boys often stayed. His letters are concerned with family matters and problems related to land and crop failures.
