Administrative Information

Restrictions on Access

Access to processed born-digital material is available in the Stuart A. Rose Manuscript, Archives, and Rare Book Library (the Rose Library) and, in some cases, online. Use of the original digital media is restricted.

Terms Governing Use and Reproduction

All requests subject to limitations noted in departmental policies on reproduction.

Additional Physical Form

Interview recordings and transcripts are available to the public in Emory's instance of Aviary, an online audiovisual streaming platform.

Source

Purchased from Mirabel Pictures, 2022.

Emory Libraries provides copies of its finding aids for use only in research and private study. Copies supplied may not be copied for others or otherwise distributed without prior consent of the holding repository.

Custodial History

Interview recordings were produced by Mirabel Pictures staff as part of their WeSurvive: Stories of the Ebola Outbreak project, and portions were used in Mirabel's 2018 feature documentary Survivors. Mirabel staff subsequently managed the recordings and supplemental material until 2022, when they prepared copies for transfer to the Rose Library following specifications provided by Emory's Oral History Program Coordinator, Audiovisual Conservator, and Head of Digital Archives. These derivative files were saved to an external hard drive and shipped to the Rose Library.

Citation

[after identification of item(s)], Mirabel Pictures WeSurvive oral history collection, Emory University Archives, Stuart A. Rose Manuscript, Archives, and Rare Book Library, Emory University.

Appraisal Note

Jonathan Coulis, Emory Oral History Program Coordinator, acquired this collection as part of the Emory University Archives' holdings in oral history and public health. All material originally received with the collection has been retained.

Processing

Processed by Katherine Fisher and Jonathan Coulis, 2022. Interview dates and locations, as well as biographical notes about interviewees, are based on information provided by Mirabel Pictures.

Digital files were transferred from an external hard drive using TeraCopy. Files were scanned for viruses using CrowdStrike anti-virus software; none were found. Video recordings were separated and processed individually by audiovisual conservator Nina Rao for ingest into preservation storage and to create access copies. The remaining supplemental files (thumbnail still images of interviewees, caption files, and content inventories) were grouped into folders by content type; within the folder for each content type, files remain in the original order established by Mirabel Pictures staff when preparing content to send to Rose Library. Supplemental files retain their original names, dates, and formats.

This finding aid may include language that is offensive or harmful. Please refer to the Rose Library's harmful language statement for more information about why such language may appear and ongoing efforts to remediate racist, ableist, sexist, homophobic, euphemistic and other oppressive language. If you are concerned about language used in this finding aid, please contact us at rose.library@emory.edu.

Collection Description

Historical Note

Mirabel pictures is a non-profit production company that focuses on working with vulnerable, underrepresented communities. Founded in 2010, they launched the WeOwnTV initiative, a collaborative media project that supports filmmakers and artists through media education and mentorship, expanding in 2016, with a fellowship program that provides direct grants to West African Filmmakers.

WeOwnTV created this oral history collection to facilitate access to personal video testimonials from Ebola survivors, their family members, and other community members who lived through the Ebola outbreak. The team was motivated to preserve these stories to promote the inclusion of African voices and the telling of African history. They hoped that the interviews will aid to a deeper level of understanding of the impact of the outbreak on people's lives and ensure that West Africans contribute directly and significantly to the historical record of this global health crisis.

Scope and Content Note

This collection consists of oral history interviews conducted with West African Ebola survivors, their family members, and other community members who lived through the Ebola outbreak in 2014-2016.

Arrangement Note

Interviews are listed in the finding aid alphabetically by interviewee name.
