Collection Description

Biographical Note

Michel Jacques Fabre was educated at the University of London and the Université de Paris and École Normale Supérieure prior to serving in the French Navy from 1959-1962. After leaving the military, he taught as a professor at Wellesley College, Harvard University, the University of Paris (X), the University of Paris (VIII), and was professor of American and Afro-American studies at la Sorbonne Nouvelle of the University of Paris (III) beginning in 1970. Together with his wife, Geneviève Fabre, he founded the Center for Afro-American Studies at the University of Paris. Both he and his wife are leading scholars of African American culture in France. Michel Fabre was the foremost biographer of Richard Wright and had close ties to the Wright family and to many African American artists, writers, and musicians throughout Europe. Among the books he authored or edited are Le Noirs Américains, The Unfinished Quest of Richard Wright, The World of Richard Wright, From Harlem to Paris, Chester Himes: An Annotated Primary and Secondary Bibliography, and The Several Lives of Chester Himes. He died on August 10, 2007.

Geneviève Fabre is a scholar of African American theater and literature and co-chaired the first Harvard University Du Bois Institute Working Group, "History and Memory in Afro-American Culture." She edited a book by the same title that has been seminal in "memory studies." Her book Le Théâtre Noir aux États-Unis (1982) was published by Harvard University Press in 1983 under the title Drumbeats, Masks, and Metaphor: Contemporary Afro-American Theater.

Scope and Content Note

The Michel Fabre archives of African American arts and letters consist of correspondence, writings, and printed material relating to expatriate writers, artists, musicians, and cultural figures, as well as Fabre's personal and business correspondence, works authored by Fabre, research files, conference materials, photographs, and audiovisual materials. The largest segment of the collection contains papers related to the work of African American writers, musicians, and artists from the United States and the Caribbean and of expatriates living in France. Included are works by writers such as Gwendolyn Brooks, Horace Cayton, James Emanuel, Wilson Harris, Chester Himes, Langston Hughes, and Richard Wright. Materials include letters, typescripts and manuscripts of works, printed material, and personal materials. An avid collector, Fabre acquired many manuscripts as well as rare books. The rich collection of materials relating to Chester Himes stems both from his personal friendship with the Himes family and his acquisition of Himes's publisher's files from Yves Malartic.

The collection's second series contains a wide range of general correspondence, written to Fabre by friends, colleagues, and publishers, while the third series represents a broad scope of Fabre's published works. Included are reprints of articles Fabre published in numerous French and American scholarly journals, as well as reviews of his work and early drafts of some pieces. An additional strength of the collection is the numerous conference programs and conference related material preserved by Fabre and relating to conferences he participated in or organized. Also included are many of Fabre's research files, materials he collected relating to Richard Wright, and a substantial number of photographs of Wright as well as numerous other writers and artists.

Series seven in the collection contains materials collected by Geneviève Fabre relating mainly to African American theatre.

The final series in the collection contains unprocessed additions created or collected by Geneviève and Michel Fabre and includes correspondence, writings by Michel Fabre and others, as well as printed material, photographs and ephemera.

Organization Note

Organized into six series: (1) Author/Artist files, (2) General correspondence, (3) Works authored by Fabre, (4) Subject files, (5) Photographs, (6) Audiovisual materials, (7) Geneviève Fabre papers, and (8) Unprocessed additions.

Series 5
Photographs, circa 1910-2003
Boxes 32-34, OP12

Scope and Content Note

Included in this series are all of the photographs that are part of the collection. The photographs come from numerous sources, including Fabre's research, letters he received from writers and personal friends, conferences, and other libraries. Primarily, the photographs found in the Fabre archive are portraits or candid pictures of the authors represented in the collection's " Author/ Artist files " series. An additional strength of the series is a group of photographs reprinted from the collection of the Library of Congress. The photographs were originally taken by various photographers working for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farm Security Administration; the images depict the lives of African-Americans during the Great Depression and were used by Richard Wright for his book 12 Million Black Voices, originally published in 1941.

Arrangement Note

Arranged in alphabetical order by subject of photograph.
