Collection Description

Biographical Note

Lucius H. Featherston (1814-1886) was born in Murfreesboro, Tennessee son of Charles (1771-1852) and Lucy Pitts (1775-1853) Featherston of Virginia. He married Maria Ann Tompkins (1819-1898), a daughter of Nicholas and Catherine Griffin Leverett Tompkins, in 1836. As a young man Lucius moved to Columbus, Georgia and went into business with his brother Edward. He later moved to Franklin, Heard County, Georgia, was admitted to the bar and represented Heard County in the legislature. He was a Brigadier General in the State Militia during his service in the Seminole Indian War (1836-1843). Featherston was first appointed judge of the Superior Court of Heard County circuit in 1863. In 1869 he moved his family to Newnan, Georgia and in 1877 was a member of the Georgia Constitutional Convention. He and Maria Ann had twelve children. Charles Nicholas ("Bud Nick") who later became a lawyer in Rome, Georgia, Giles Winfield, and Lucius H. Jr. ("Bud Lou") all served in the Confederate Army. Other children were Edward Pitts, John Henry, Sarah Maria, William Stegall, Thomas Middleton, Annie May, Joseph Ernest (Joe), Zerlina Catherine (Kate) born 1838, who married Dr. George W. Peddy, and Mary Emma born 1856, who married Henry S. Wright.

George Washington Peddy, son of Alexander George and Celina Shackelford Peddy was born in Franklin, Georgia, 1834. He received a degree from the New Orleans School of Medicine in 1859, and married Kate Featherston the same year. They had six children -- Annie Laurie (Laura) born 1860, Charlie born 1864, who died at 15 months, Minnie born 1869, Sallie Hassie (Daisy) born 1873, Katie May born 1877, and Louise, born 1881. Katie May married David S. Cuttino. Their son G.P. Cuttino is the donor of these papers. Dr. G. W. Peddy was a surgeon with the 56th Georgia Volunteer Infantry, Army of Tennessee (1862-1865). After the war he returned to his medical practice and served as a state senator for Heard, Carroll, and Troup Counties in 1870. He died in 1913 and is buried in Newnan, Georgia where he and his family had moved in 1877.

Henry S. Wright, born in Arkansas in 1857, was the son of John Andrew Wright and Thyrsa Francis Flemming Wright. He received his education in Georgia and in 1882 he and Mary Emma Featherston, a graduate of College Temple in Newnan, Georgia, and daughter of Lucius H. Featherston, were married. He received a medical degree from the Atlanta Medical College in 1893, after having been a pharmacist for several years. His portrait was presented to the Fulton County Medical Society after his death in 1911.

Kathleen Wright (b. 1883), daughter of Henry and Mary Wright was educated at Lucy Cobb Institute in Athens, Georgia and at Hollins College, Virginia (1901-1903) where she studied painting. Her education was supplemented with summer courses at UCLA and Harvard and she received an AB degree from Emory in 1927. Kathleen taught in Atlanta public schools in the 1920's, attended the School of the High Museum of Art (1935-1936), and was frequently involved in the arts in Atlanta, where she lived until her death in 1970.

Scope and Content Note

These papers consist of materials produced by or pertaining to the family of Lucius H. Featherston. They are divided into five series, three by family name and two by material type: Featherston family papers, Peddy family papers, Wright family papers, photographs, and memorabilia. The Lucius H. Featherston papers contain both personal and business correspondence, family Bibles and genealogical materials, legal documents, financial records, diaries, club meeting minutes, printed material, photographs and three dimensional objects. The earliest items (1825) are legal documents relating to the Giles S. Tompkins estate. Latest items (1974) are letters concerning the history of the Featherston family.

The strength of the collection lies in the family correspondence which documents daily life in Georgia during the latter half of the nineteenth century, most particularly the Civil War years, and the early twentieth century. A weaker aspect of the collection is the small amount of Lucius H. Featherston's personal papers included in proportion to his business and professional papers. Major correspondents are family members. Prominent Georgian correspondents are Joseph E. Brown, Benjamin H. Hill, Alfred H. Colquitt and Lemuel P. Grant. Major subjects of the collection are law, medicine, courtship and marriage, and education.

Arrangement Note

Organized into five series: (1) Featherstone family papers, (2) Peddy family papers, (3) Wright family papers, (4) Photographs, and (5) Memorabilia

Scope and Content Note

Legal, business, and personal papers of Lucius H. Featherston concerning his career as lawyer, judge, and landowner in the Franklin and Newnan, Georgia area form the nucleus of this collection. Legal documents pertain to both civil and criminal cases -- land disputes, divorce, slave ownership -- and to Featherston's term as a judge of the Heard County Superior Court (1850-1883). Correspondence includes (4) letters from prominent Georgians Joseph E. Brown (1863, 1871, 1877) discussing Featherston's appointment as a judge, Lemuel P. Grant (1860) concerning the direction the South was taking and possibilities of a new railroad route, and Alfred H. Colquitt (1880) concerning Featherston's candidacy for judge. Documents from the Reconstruction era are a letter from George R. Walbridge (October, 1866), Captain and Assistant Inspector General, LaGrange, questioning Featherston about the "Black Cavalry" and the murder of blacks in Heard County, Internal Revenue forms (1866-1867), and the draft of a resolution concerning the colonization of ex-slaves (1870) involving the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Family letters include those from Featherston's brothers (1854-1855) urging him to explore lands in Arkansas. Other letters are from Lucius H. Featherston's son C.N. Featherston at a Confederate Army camp near Richmond, Virginia, and from Featherston to his wife Maria. Bills and receipts (1837-1899) depict Featherston's daily business dealings, and account books (1837-1869) list debts owed and paid, land lots bought and sold, and other properties. The account book for 1851-1864 lists names and values of Charles F. and Lucius H. Featherston's slaves prior to the Civil War. Material pertaining to Charles F. Featherston's estate and his business dealings with his son's father-in-law Nicholas Tompkins and his daughter's father-in-law James Fletcher; papers relating to the estate of Giles S. Tompkins, Maria Featherston's brother, and other family legal and business papers complete the series.

The series is arranged with family genealogical information filed prior to Tompkins and Featherston family materials (folders 1-5). The family materials are divided by family member name and are further arranged chronologically. Lucius Horace Featherston's materials (ca. 1835-ca. 1900) follow those of other family members and are filed with legal materials first followed by financial records, personal documents, printed material and chronologically arranged correspondence. One folder of Featherston family correspondence and a folder of family obituaries complete the boxed Featherston family papers. A family Bible (BV 1), a diploma (OP 3), and an account book (OBV 1) are housed separately.

Series 2
Peddy family papers, 1836-1940, 1979
Boxes 7-9, BV 2, OP 2-6

Scope and Content Note

Included in this series are legal documents of Alexander George Peddy (1803-1878), father of George Washington Peddy and grandfather of George Peddy Cuttino, concerning a case against Peddy and Smith, lawyers. Personal, business and financial papers of George W. Peddy (1834-1913) document his service as a CSA surgeon and as a physician in the Newnan, Georgia area. The correspondence of George W. Peddy and his wife Zerlina Catherine (Kate) Peddy (1838-1927), upon which George P. Cuttino's book, Saddle Bag and Spinning Wheel (Macon, Ga.: Mercer Univ. Press, 1980) is based, recounts their separation during the war years, 1861-1865. Letters to George and Kate from friends and family prior to and during their marriage include those from Charles Nicholas Featherston while at Emory College, 1858-1859 and while serving as a soldier in the Confederate Army, 1861-1863. Letters from George's brother, John Taylor Peddy, 1862, who was with the Seventh Regiment Ga. Volunteers, are also included. War activity in north and south Georgia is discussed in letters exchanged between George and his father-in-law, Lucius H. Featherston. Remaining correspondence concerns family life and social events. The manuscript of Saddle Bag and Spinning Wheel and seven diaries kept by Daisy Peddy, 1933-1940, recounting her life in Newnan, Georgia where she taught music, complete the series.

A general chronological arrangement of earliest to most recent family materials is preceded by genealogical information. All family correspondence is arranged in chronological order with the series of letters exchanged between Kate and George Peddy kept together. A family Bible (BV 2) and 4 diplomas (OP 3) are housed separately.

Series 3
Wright family papers, 1853-1966
Boxes 10-17, OP 7

Scope and Content Note

The bulk of the material included in this series is correspondence, 1853-1866. The earliest letters are from John Andrew Wright (1831-1858), father of Henry S. Wright, to his mother, Lucy Andrew (Wright) Henry, and to his second wife, Thyrza Flemming Wright. John A. Wright left Georgia in 1856 for Arkansas where he died in 1858. Thyrza Wright and her son Henry returned to Georgia ca. 1870, where she and Henry were separated while Henry attended various schools. Several letters were exchanged between mother and son during this period. The courtship and marriage of Henry Wright and Mary Emma Featherston is documented through their correspondence which begins in 1882. Letters include discussions of a Newnan, Georgia smallpox epidemic (1886), Henry's employment at Asa Griggs Candler's drugstore (ca. 1888), and the beginning of his medical practice (ca. 1893). Mary and their three children Kathleen, Lucius, and Marie Louise not did not join Henry in Atlanta until 1897. Kathleen Wright's letters to and from family and friends recount her education and activities at Lucy Cobb Institute in Athens, Georgia and at Hollins College in Virginia (1901-1903). The majority of the later letters are from Lucius Wright, physician and army colonel, and his family, to his sister Kathleen (1937-1966). The series is completed with materials relating to Henry Wright's medical practice, Mary F. Wright's education at College Temple in Newnan, Georgia (1873-1874) and her activities with various woman's clubs in Atlanta, Georgia (1900-1925).

Chronological arrangement of correspondence is preceded by family genealogical materials. Undated correspondence is placed together after all dated correspondence and is arranged by name of family member correspondent. Family materials follow with those of Mary F. Wright and Henry Wright first, Kathleen Wright and Marie Louise Wright second and general family material last. Housed separately is a diploma (OP 3).

- 17 8 Wright family miscellaneous - coat of arms advertisements, 1912, 1928, ca. 1960's

Series 4
Photographs, [ca. 1845-1940]
Boxes 18-20, OP 8-9

Scope and Content Note

This collection of photographs of members of the Featherston-Peddy-Wright families and their branches is a fine representation of nineteenth century photography. It includes daguerreotypes, ambrotypes, and tintypes as well as cartes-des-visites, cabinet cards, and portraits. Most interesting in relation to Series 1-3 are a daguerreotype of Mary Overton Cosby Andrew, mother of Bishop James Osgood Andrew and mother-in-law to John Wright; an ambrotype of Mr. and Mrs. J.A. Wright, parents of Henry Wright; an ivorytype of Lucius H. Featherston; a tintype of Mary Emma Featherston at about age eighteen; a family portrait of the Peddys; and photographs of Kathleen Wright and school friends. A carte-de-visite album with photographs, ca. 1860-1880, is an example of a kind many nineteenth-century families owned and enjoyed. Photographers of Atlanta, Eatonton, Newnan, Macon, LaGrange and Madison, Georgia represented in this series are named in the inventory if known, as are several photographers from out-of-state.

The series is arranged by family name and are further divided into groups of family members and family friends. One exception is the final box that contains photographs of Kathleen Wright and friends only, followed by photographs of unidentified persons. Housed separately are a Featherston family portrait (OP 2) and a portrait of John H. Featherston (OP 1).
