Collection Description

Biographical Note
Ichabod Frisbie (December 8, 1835-August 24, 1918) was born at Southington, Connecticut and moved to Grandview, Iowa in 1853. In 1861 he married Hannah Patmor. Frisbie enlisted and reported for duty in Company F, 35th Iowa Infantry Regiment at Muscatine, Iowa on August 25, 1862. His regiment was mustered in at Muscatine on September 18, 1862, and was mustered out August 10, 1865. The regiment remained at Camp Strong till November 22 when it moved to Cairo, Illinois. Frisbie was appointed Hospital Steward of his regiment on April 15, 1863.

In 1875 he moved to Red Cloud, Nebraska and started a flour mill on the Republican River, probably the first flour mill west of Omaha and east of the California coast. Frisbie's wife, Hannah, died in Red Cloud on May 12, 1884. He was married twice more, with his third wife surviving him.

Scope and Content Note
The collection consists of the papers of Ichabod Frisbie from 1862-1865. The papers include correspondence (1862-1865), three essays, a journal (1862), and a diary (1865). The letters are from Frisbie to his first wife, Hannah. Correspondence, the journal, and the diary, all tell of his experiences in camp, his reading, leisure activities, his thoughts on child-rearing and religion, and of his work as a hospital steward based in Camp Strong (Iowa) and Camp Defiance (Cairo, Illinois); he was also sent to Mississippi, Tennessee, Louisiana, and Alabama. The essays are "Benevolence," "The Christian Light," and "A Way to Reclaim the Fallen and Retain the Virtuous."

Arrangement Note
Arranged by record type.

camp life near home, among friends and relatives. He spent much time visiting and assisting the sick soldiers in the hospital. He attended religious services frequently and mentions reading and lending books. He also comments on games and other diversions, as well as instances of misconduct and disciplinary action. There is a typewritten copy of the journal filed with the original.
