Collection Description

Biographical Note
David Constantine Gunsadze (1861-1924) was born in the village of Kvaleti near Kutaisi, the capitol of Imeretia in Western Georgia. He entered service in 1877, by 1912, he was given command of the 97th Lifland Infantry Regiment. During World War I, he took command of the 67th Infantry Division in April of 1915, the 53rd Infantry Division in August of 1915, and the 43rd Army Corps in October of 1917. In November of 1917 he was given temporary command of the 12th Army. After forty years of military service, Gunsadze retired in December of 1917. He then joined his family in Odessa and they soon moved to the Caucasus region in Southern Russia. Here he joined the White Army and was designated to command a special brigade of the Astrachan Army Group. After the fall of Crimea to the Red Army in 1920, Gunsadze departed Russia and emmigrated to Croatia, Yugoslavia.

He married Olga Makarovna Kotliarevsky and their children were Eugene (b. 1893), Vladimir (b. 1895), Constantine (b. 1897), Margarita (b. 1899), Nina (b. 1903), Tamara (b. 1905), and Ruthina (b. 1907).
