Collection Description

Biographical Note
Margie Pitts Hames practiced law in Atlanta from 1962, until her death in 1994. Born in Milton, Tennessee in 1933, Hames graduated with honors from Kittrell High School in 1951. After receiving her B.S. at Middle Tennessee State University, Hames attended Vanderbilt University School of Law where she received her J.D. in 1961. After graduation she worked with Fisher and Phillips in Atlanta on labor-management relations. After the birth of her children, Adam and Donia, she left the firm in 1968 and the following year began volunteer work for the Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, a Ford Foundation project that worked to prevent confrontations between civil rights demonstrators and police. She opened her own firm in 1971. Hames actively engaged in cases involving abortion rights, women’s rights, school desegregation, employment discrimination, workers compensation, personal injury, social security claims, domestic relations, criminal defense, medical malpractice, defense, educational rights for gifted and disabled children, and general civil litigation. Hames served as a legal counsel for several major Atlanta abortion clinics including Atlanta Surgi Center, Hillcrest Clinic, Summit Medical Center, Midtown Hospital, and the Atlanta Center for Reproductive Health. She argued Doe v. Bolton before the United States Supreme Court that helped make abortion legal in the United States. Other important cases included Drummond v. Fulton County Department of Family and Children’s Services, in which she defended the right of a white couple to adopt a multi racial child; Sinyard v. Foote and Davies which integrated women into previously all male job classifications; Leonard v. City of Columbus in which she represented a group of Afro-American police officers attempting to establish an Afro-American Patrolman’s League; and Comstock v. Eastern Airlines in which Hames assisted with a class action suit involving employment discrimination. Hames participated in many civic activities in Atlanta including the Southern Coalition for Educational Equity; Planned Parenthood; American Civil Liberties Union; Rape Crisis Task Force; Leadership Atlanta; the Individual Rights Section of the State Bar; Women Trial Lawyers Organization; Georgia Association of Women Lawyers; and the Georgia Commission of the International Year of the Child.

Scope and Content Note
The collection consists of the personal and professional papers of Margie Pitts Hames from 1969-1993. The papers consist of subject files and legal case files. The subject files contain extensive research on legal issues linked to Margie Pitts Hames’s major cases, information on her professional life, personal information, and material from her unsuccessful campaign for Georgia Supreme Court Justice in 1982. The series also contains material from Cynthia McKinney’s campaign for the House of Representatives in 1992-1993, miscellaneous correspondence, and many materials dealing with the American Civil Liberties Union.
The case files include primarily legal documents, depositions, transcripts, correspondence, notes, and evidence. The files provide much information on Equal Employment Opportunity Commission cases, abortion clinics, civil rights in Atlanta, and family law. Several lawyers received their start in the legal profession by working for Hames and are well represented in the collection, including Alice Bonner, Blenna Stone, Mary Oakley, Barbara Bethune, and Timothy Wolfe.

Arrangement Note
Organized into two series: (1) Subject files and (2) Case files.
Description of Series

Series 1: Subject Files
Series 2: Case files
Series 1
Subject Files
Boxes 1 - 13

Scope and Content Note
The series contains subject files that primarily contain extensive research on legal issues linked to Hames’s major cases. Of particular interest is the material on abortion rights and efforts to pass pro-choice legislation in Georgia. The subject files also contain information on her professional life including materials from Hames’s unsuccessful campaign for Georgia Supreme Court Justice in 1982, the Atlanta Bar Association, the Individual Rights Section of the Georgia State Bar that Hames help found, and the American Civil Liberties Union. Personal files includes correspondence concerning her divorce from Atlanta lawyer William Hames and some legal material concerning a coalition of Buckhead residents fighting the construction of a large complex on Peachtree Road near the Hames home. The series also includes material from Cynthia McKinney’s campaign for the House of Representatives in 1992-1993.

Arrangement Note
Arranged in alphabetical order by subject.

Series 2
Case files
Boxes 14 - 100

Scope and Content Note
The legal case files provide much information on Equal Employment Opportunity Commission cases, abortion clinics, civil rights in Atlanta, and family law. Some of the more interesting and prominent cases include Doe v. Bolton, Drummond v. Fulton County Department of Family and Children’s Services, Sinyard v. Foote, Leonard v. City of Columbus, and Comstock v. Eastern Airlines. Many of the smaller and lesser-known cases also have valuable information, particularly those involving employment discrimination. As Hames served as legal counsel for several Equal Rights Amendment abortion clinics, many cases involved defending the clinics against malpractice charges. Case files normally include legal documents, depositions, transcripts, correspondence, notes, and evidence. Several Equal Rights Amendment lawyers received their start in the legal profession by working for Hames and are well represented in the collection, including Alice Bonner; Glenna Stone; Mary Oakley; Barbara Bethune; and Timothy Wolfe. The files are arranged by case file number as organized by Hames’s law office. The case number is placed in parentheses at the end of each folder description. The cases are in chronological order with the last name of the client first. In some very brief cases, the first name and date are not known.
