Collection DescriptionHistorical Note

Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home opened in 1929 under the management and ownership of Jesse Howard Hanley and served Atlanta, Georgia's African American community through the 1990s. Hanley first entered the undertaking and funeral business in 1917, when he and his brother William founded the Hanley Undertaking Company, then operating out of a rented property at 250 Edgewood Street. Jesse Hanley was 26 at this time and had, for 15 years previously, been travelling the country as a sleight of hand performer.

In 1929, Hanley purchased property at 21 Bell Street and Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home began operating out of this building. The move to Bell Street signified the beginning of the business' expansion, including a branch on Ashby Street in Atlanta, under the name Hanley's Ashby Street Funeral Home. Under Hanley's management, the funeral home became known for its commitment to serving all members of the community regardless of their financial means. In addition to its undertaking and funeral services, Hanley's ran an ambulance service and organized donations of food and money to local churches and charities. In some instances, the funeral home also acted as a trustee for the estates of the recently deceased.

Following Jesse Hanley's death in 1948, Hanley's cousin, Hillman Hanley, Sr. and his associate Gladys Willingham took over management of Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home. In his will, Jesse Hanley instructed that net profits from the business should be divided equally every thirty days between employees who had worked at the funeral home for at least ten years. Eventually, the management of the business passed to Hillman Hanley, Jr. and his wife Doris, who continued to operate the funeral home, along with Willingham, until it closed in the 1990s.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of the records of Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home from 1922-1997 and includes funeral home records, Hanley family papers, printed material, photographs, and objects and memorabilia. Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home records document the day-to-day operations of the business, including its ambulance service and instances in which the business served as trustee for the estates of the recently deceased. The series contains correspondence, financial records, funeral records, and other administrative records, and provides demographic information about the African American community living in Atlanta during this time period.

The Hanley family papers include the personal papers of Jesse Hanley and Doris Hanley, the wife of Hillman Hanley, Jr. Both Jesse and Doris Hanley were actively involved with the Gate City Lodge and the Georgia Association of Improved Benevolent Protective Order of the Elks of the World. This involvement is represented in their papers, alongside correspondence and other records documenting Doris Hanley's career as a teacher. Other family members and associates represented within this series include Lula Davidson, secretary and treasurer for Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home and the executrix of Jesse Hanley's estate; Florence Hanley, Jesse Hanley's aunt; Hillman Hanley, Jr.; and Gladys Willingham.

Printed material includes documents created by and about Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home, along with material collected by the organization. Printed material by and about the funeral home includes advertisements, obituaries and memorials relating to the death of Jesse Hanley, and articles about Hanley and the company. Other printed material includes flyers, newsletters, programs, and registers primarily relating to Atlanta-based African American churches, local community events, and professional organizations.

A limited number of photographs in the collection consist primarily of unidentified portraits, with a small number of images documenting the Big Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church's Women's Day of 1973. Finally, objects and memorabilia include a number of promotional items for the funeral home and items relating to the Hanley family.

Arrangement Note

Organized into five series: (1) Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home records, (2) Hanley family papers, (3) Printed material, (4) Photographs, and (5) Objects and memorabilia.

Series 1Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home records, 1907-1997 (bulk 1950-1989)
Boxes 1-106, OP 1-12, BV 1-12, and OBV 1-2*Scope and Content Note

The series consists of correspondence, financial records, funeral records, and other administrative records detailing the day-to-day operations of Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home from 1907-1997, with the bulk of material spanning the 1950s-1980s. Correspondence contains letters to and from suppliers, customers, insurance companies, attorneys, and professional organizations. Additional correspondence documents the business's involvement with local organizations and community events. Financial records document the business's income and expenditures from 1930-1997, with the bulk of material spanning 1940-1960. Included are bank statements, checkbooks, deposit slips, and receipt books, alongside ledgers that document payroll expenses and operating costs. Also included are tax records and documentation relating to a small number of rental properties owned by the business.

The funeral records are the largest of the four subseries and includes all documentation and correspondence relating to the planning and organization of specific funerals that took place at Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home. The subseries includes over 2,400 client files. The client files detail individual funerals and include insurance documents, correspondence between the funeral home and the family and friends of the deceased, funeral programs, documents relating to the funeral's cost and payment, forms used to create official death certificates, and legal documents. Also included in the subseries are a large number of certificates of death, originally bound into ledgers and dating from 1922-1995. Created by the funeral home, the certificates of death provide details about the deceased, such as the date of death, cause of death, place of residence, occupation, and surviving relatives. Records relating to the funeral home's ambulance service document trips provided to patients, with details about the associated costs.

Finally, other administrative records document the daily administrative tasks relating to the funeral home and the undertaking business. The materials include permits and forms, appointment books, and various notes and notebooks.

Arrangement Note

Organized into four subseries: (1.1) Correspondence, (1.2) Financial records, (1.3) Funeral records, and (1.4) Other administrative records.

Financial records, 1931-1997 (bulk 1940-1960)
Boxes 6-33, OP 1-10, BV 1-5, and OBV 1

Scope and Content Note

The series consists of the financial records of Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home from 1930-1997, and is comprised of general records, ledgers, bank statements, check books, deposit slips, and receipt books. The bulk of the material covers the period 1940-1960. General records include reports, tax records, and statements regarding property rented out by the business. Ledgers document the funeral home's general income and expenditures, as well as payroll expenses. Also included are four small ledgers recording fares collected by Hanley's-owned taxis. Bank statements, check books, deposit slips, and receipt books document the funeral home's individual financial transactions. Correspondence of a financial nature can be found in Subseries 1.1: Correspondence.

A small number of financial records from Hanley's Ashby Street Funeral Home are present in the subseries. These consist primarily of bank statements, check books, and deposit slips.

Subseries 1.3
Funeral records, 1907-1997
Boxes 34-103, BV 6-12, and OBV 2

Scope and Content Note

The subseries consists of records relating to funerals organized by or performed at Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home from 1907-1997. Included are 2,415 client files, each file grouping all documentation relating to a single funeral under the name of the deceased. These files contain forms used to create official death certificates, records documenting the planning of the funeral and its associated costs, correspondence between the funeral home and surviving family and friends, funeral programs, insurance documents and legal documents, and other assorted records. Also included in the subseries are a large number of certificates of death, originally bound into ledgers and dating from 1922-1995. Created by the funeral home, the certificates of death provide details about the deceased, such as the date of death, cause of death, place of residence, occupation, and surviving relatives.

Transportation records consist primarily of records relating to the funeral home's ambulance service, but also contain small numbers of receipts documenting the transportation of bodies cross country via train, and forms documenting business use of the business-owned cars. Two scrapbooks contain obituary and funeral notices for clients between 1972 and 1973. Other materials include funeral contracts for 1944, 1962, and 1963, and information sheets providing details on clients of the funeral home. There are a number of funeral records that list the names of multiple clients and these consist primarily of cemetery and vault company invoices. Also included are forms documenting the transfer of death benefits to Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home from 1961-1980. Finally, a number of records relate to clients who could not be identified and these include burial clothing invoices, insurance records, pages taken from registers of visitors, and sympathy cards.

Subseries 1.4
Other administrative records, 1931-1993
Boxes 104-106 and OP 11-12

Scope and Content Note

The subseries consists of other administrative records of Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home from 1931-1993. The material relates to the daily operation of the funeral home and includes appointment books, administrative notebooks and notes, insurance policies, personnel records, property records, and to do lists. The subseries also contains forms, permits, and licenses, as well as legal documents such as affidavits, contracts relating to the business, and the partnership agreement between Hillman Hanley and Gladys Willingham.

Also included in the subseries is one folder of Fulton Casket Company records, a business which shared office space with Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home. It is unclear if this business was also owned by the Hanley family.

Series 2
Hanley family papers, 1929-1995
Boxes 107-116 and OP 13-14

Scope and Content Note

The series consists of the personal papers of the Hanley family and their associates from 1929-1995. The personal papers of Jesse Hanley and Doris Hanley compose the bulk of the material. Jesse Hanley's papers include financial records, correspondence, material pertaining to his involvement with the Gate City Lodge and the Georgia Association of Improved Benevolent Protective Order of the Elks of the World, and papers relating his death and estate. Since Hanley often used his personal bank account for business expenses, some of the financial records relate directly to the operation of the funeral home. All of the material from after Jesse Hanley's death in July 1948 was handled by the executrix of his estate, Lula Davidson.

Doris Hanley's papers contain materials relating to her personal finances, her involvement with the Improved Benevolent Protective Order of the Elks of the World, planning records from the Big Bethel African American Episcopal Church, her education, and her career as a teacher in Atlanta Public Schools. The financial records are primarily from 1972-1975. Doris Hanley's personal account was also occasionally used for matters relating to the business. The materials relating to her career include teaching manuals that offer educational theory and regulations as well as teaching resources that provide activities for the classroom.

The series also contains papers from other family members and associates. The papers include material relating to Hillman Hanley, Jr.; Hillman Hanley, Sr.; Florence Hanley; and Gladis Hanley. Papers relating to Doris Hanley's mother, Elnora Aiken, and sister, Lillie Mae Gibson, are also included. Close associates, Lula Davidson, who was secretary and treasurer for Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home, and Gladys Willingham (1923-2009), who co-operated the business with Hillman and Doris Hanley, also have material in the series.

Series 3
Printed material, 1930-1997
Boxes 117-123 and OP 15-18

Scope and Content Note

The series consists of printed material created by or about Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home, and printed material created by other organizations and collected by Hanley's. Printed material by or about Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home includes advertisements placed by the funeral home in the programs of community events, newspaper articles relating to the business, calendars printed by the funeral home, and memorials placed in honor of Jesse Hanley. A ticket for a special service at Denson's Temple Church that featured a film of Jesse Hanley's burial is also included.

Other printed material primarily relates to Atlanta African American churches, local community events, and professional organizations. It includes programs, newsletters, financial reports, and calendars from such churches as Ebenezer Baptist Church, Wesley Memorial United Methodist Church, and Big Bethel African Methodist Episcopal (A.M.E.) Church. It also includes flyers, tickets, and programs for community events relating to the Auburn Avenue neighborhood, and materials created by the Georgia Funeral Service Practitioners Association and the National Funeral Directors and Morticians Association.

Arrangement Note

Organized into two subseries: (3.1) Printed material by and about Hanley's Bell Street Funeral Home and (3.2) Other printed material.
