Collection DescriptionBiographical Note

Charles Randall Hart, educator and author, was born September 20, 1891 in Rochester New York, and died January 24, 1981 in Atlanta, Georgia. He was educated at Williams College (M.A., 1916) and Johns Hopkins (Ph.D., 1927), and taught romance languages and classics at Lafayette College (1919-1920), Reed College (1927-1928), and Emory University (1928-1960). He also served with the Foyer du Soldat in the French Army (1917-1919) and wrote a drama-in-verse about Samuel Johnson.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of papers related to Charles R. Hart from 1860-1977. The papers include correspondence, receipts, report cards, postcards, clippings, diaries, date books, poems, and printed material. The majority of the collection consists of correspondence, primarily letters of Charles R. Hart. Many are to his mother, Margaret Louise Hart. Other family members' letters are also included, particularly those of his wife, Angie McCoy Harding Hart, and his brothers, Kenneth and Kirke. Charles Hart's letters document his daily life as a student, soldier, and teacher. The other materials in the collection are also Charles Hart's.
