Collection Description

Biographical Note

Clark Howell, editor, legislator, and politician, was born September 21, 1863, in Barnwell County, South Carolina, and died November 14, 1936 in Atlanta, Georgia.

After his father (Evan Park Howell) retired as publisher of the Atlanta Constitution, he replaced him and bought control of the newspaper in 1901, becoming editor-in-chief for 35 years. He served as a Georgia legislator, 1885-1891 (Speaker 1891), and again 1900-1906, but his 1907 gubernatorial bid was unsuccessful. He was chairman of three national commissions, a trustee of University of Georgia (1896-1927); wrote History of Georgia (1926) and helped the Constitution win the 1931 Pulitzer Prize by exposing Atlanta city graft.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of the papers of Clark Howell from 1864-1936. The papers include scrapbooks, correspondence, published speeches and writings, genealogy, postcards, photographs, transcripts, obituaries, and an interview. These materials relate to Howell's life, career, travels, and to the Howell family; scrapbooks contain clippings, postcards, and obituaries which are of Howell, his father Evan, his mother Julia, his children Rosalie and Hugh M. Comer Howell. Correspondence is from Claude G. Bowes to John B. Stetson, Jr. Transcripts are of Evan P. Howell's Civil War letters; an interview is with Rosalie Howell.
