Collection Description

Biographical Note

David Alexander Lockmiller (1906-2005), lawyer, educator and author, received undergraduate and graduate degrees (1927, 1928) from Emory University (Atlanta, Ga.) and a law degree from Cumberland Law School (Lebanon, Tenn.). He served as president of the University of Chattanooga and of Ohio Wesleyan University. He was also Executive Director of the National Home Study Council, Washington, D.C.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of the papers of David Alexander Lockmiller from 1863-1968. The papers include correspondences, photographs, programs, pamphlets and memorabilia relating primarily to Lockmiller's student life at Emory University (Atlanta, Ga.). Of particular interest are four diaries (1926-1929) kept by Lockmiller as an undergraduate and graduate student at Emory University, as a law student at Cumberland Law School (then located in Lebanon, Tenn.) and as an attorney in Monette, Arkansas. These diaries describe his day-to-day activities, including people he saw and events which he participated in or witnessed.

Arrangement Note

Unprocessed collection, arranged roughly by record type.
