Collection DescriptionBiographical Note

Ralph McGill (February 5, 1898 - February 3, 1969), journalist, editor, and publisher, was born Ralph Waldo Emerson McGill in the farming community of Iqouls Ferry, ten miles from the coal-mining town of Soddy, in Hamilton County, Tennessee. The son of Benjamin Franklin McGill, a small farmer, and Mary Louise Skillern McGill, Ralph was the oldest of four children and the only son.

When Ralph was six years old, the family moved to Chattanooga, thirty miles south of Soddy, where he attended elementary school and McCallie Preparatory School, graduating in 1917. He entered the freshman class at Vanderbilt University in the fall of 1917, left in the spring of 1918 to enlist in the U.S. Marine Corps, and returned to Vanderbilt in the fall of 1919. In 1922, several months before he was to graduate, McGill was expelled for a prank. He never received a college degree.

During his final year at Vanderbilt, McGill began working as a reporter for the Nashville Banner covering political, police, and sports stories. In 1923, he was made sports editor. In March 1929, he left the Banner for a position as sports editor for the Atlanta Constitution, beginning work there on April 3, 1929. As in Nashville, McGill wrote occasional features on political and economic subjects, and in 1937, a series he wrote on Georgia agriculture won for him a Rosenwald fellowship for a year of travel and study in Europe. From this trip came a series of articles published as Two Georgians Explore Scandinavia by Ralph McGill and Thomas C. David, Atlanta: State Department of Education, 1938. Upon his return in 1938, McGill was made executive editor of the Constitution, and in 1941, was promoted to editor-in-chief, a position he held until 1960, when he was named publisher.

Throughout his career, McGill traveled widely, to Europe, Cuba, Africa, the Middle East, and Southeast Asia, and wrote on national and international affairs. He became best known as a spokesman for his region during the racial turmoil of the 1950s and 1960s. Often called the "Conscience of the South," McGill took a moderate position on racial issues and appealed for racial cooperation and obedience to the law of the land after the Supreme Court ruling in 1954, thereby becoming identified with the "liberal" element in the south and gaining national acclaim.

In 1959, he was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for distinguished editorial writing. He also received the Lauterbach award for "distinguished service in the field of civil liberties" in 1960, the Florence Lasker award of the American Civil Liberties Union in 1964, the Presidential Medal of Freedom in 1964, and many honorary degrees.

In addition to newspaper columns and magazine articles which appeared in such periodicals as Harper's, Saturday Evening Post, New Republic, and Atlantic Monthly, McGill also wrote four books: Israel Revisited (1950); The Fleas Come With the Dog (1954); A Church, A School (1959); and The South and the Southerner (1965), which was awarded the Atlantic Monthly non-fiction prize for that year.

McGill's circle of friends was wide and varied. Among his close friends (in addition to Harold Martin, Grace Lundy, and others on the Constitution staff, and his lifelong friend, Rebecca Mathis Gershon) were Robert W. Woodruff, Harry Ashmore, and Carl Sandburg. Adlai Stevenson, Edward Weeks, Lawrence Winship, Westbrook Pegler, and Harry Golden, Dwight D. Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, Robert F. Kennedy, Richard M. Nixon, Ernest Hemingway, and Carson McCullers were numbered among his acquaintances and correspondents.

McGill was first married to Mary Elizabeth Leonard (January 14, 1905 - March 21, 1962) of Nashville, on September 4, 1929. Two children were born to the marriage, a daughter Elizabeth, who died in infancy (January 6-10, 1936) and Ralph E. McGill, Jr. (b. April 25, 1945). In the spring of 1936, after the death of their first child, the McGills adopted a daughter whom they named Virginia Colvin McGill (February 3, 1936-December 20, 1939). Virginia died of leukemia at the age of 3 1/2 years.

McGill's second marriage was to Dr. Mary Lynn Morgan (b. April 5, 1921), an Atlanta pedodontist, on April 20, 1967. Ralph McGill died in Atlanta on February 3, 1969. McGill, his first wife, and their two daughters are buried in Westview Cemetery in Atlanta.

For a more detailed treatment of the life of Ralph McGill, see Harold H. Martin, Ralph McGill, Reporter (Boston: Little Brown, 1973). Biographical information is also found in various locations throughout the collection, particularly in letters of the following dates filed chronologically in the general correspondence: April 12, 1948; February 26, 1949; May 6, 1949; June 11, 1949; September 7, 1949; December 1, 1958; March 4, 1960; March 16, 1960; May 13, 1960; and November 9, 1967.

Writings
Boxes 26-44; OP7

Scope and Content Note

Although few records survive relating to the publication of McGill's first three books, the collection contains correspondence, drafts, reviews, and publicity materials concerning The South and the Southerner (1963). McGill's earliest effort, a proposed book on the Chattahoochee River, was never published, but files of papers, correspondence, printed miscellany, and chapter drafts document this project.

The subseries of articles is arranged chronologically by date of writing or publication. Some folders include drafts and correspondence concerning publication; others contain only the published copy. An appendix lists the contents of this series in detail, noting title, date of publication, and place of publication, if known.

Another subseries contains professional correspondence and is arranged alphabetically by name of publisher or the periodical. This group of papers reveals an early effort by Knopf to get McGill to write a book on the South (1943-1948); an effort by John Fischer at Harper's to get a history of the Coca-Cola Company from McGill (1948); negotiations with Doubleday for a McGill biography of Estes Kefauver (1967-1968); and correspondence with the syndicates which handled McGill's column.

Arrangement Note

Organized into five subseries: (4.1) Books; (4.2) Articles; (4.3) Professional correspondence; (4.4) Interviews and speeches; and (4.5) Book reviews and miscellaneous writings.

Series 5
Subject files
Boxes 45-71

Scope and Content Note

The largest series by volume, subject files, contains papers that McGill collected on a wide variety of topics for his own use in his writings. Among the most interesting of these materials are reports filed by Constitution reporters on meetings of the Ku Klux Klan and the Columbians in Georgia in the 1930s and early 1940s. Other materials reflect McGill's interest in Southern history and the Civil War, civil rights and race relations, and education. Most of the materials are clippings, speeches, and printed articles.

Subseries 14.1
Correspondence, 1926-1966
Box 104

Scope and Content Note

Subseries 14.1, Correspondence, contains four groups of correspondence. The first group consists of letters written by Ralph McGill to Louise Stevens, dating from 1926-1929. McGill signs his name "Mac" and refers to Louise Stevens as "Steve." Written during his days at the Nashville Banner, they discuss events and people and his love for Louise Stevens. These letters were given to the library by Louise Stevens (Mrs. Ernest F. King) upon a request by McGill's biographer, Harold Martin. Also included are letters exchanged between Mrs. King and Harold Martin about her gift of the McGill letters to Emory and which also includes some explanations of the people mentioned in the original McGill letters.

The second group of correspondence is letters exchanged between Ralph McGill and Malcolm Bryan, editor of the Atlanta Journal. These letters, dated 1951-1964, discuss some of McGill's columns of which Bryan was not always pleased. This group of letters are photocopies from original letters located in the Malcolm Honore Bryan papers (MSS 536) which were given to the library in September 1971.

The third group of correspondence is photocopies of letters between McGill and Thomas Caldecott Chubb (November 1, 1899-March 22, 1972), poet and biographer. These letters, written out of friendship, discuss events and people and date from 1934 to 1959.

The fourth group of correspondence, also photocopied, is letters exchanged between McGill and Robert L. Sherrod, editor of The Saturday Evening Post, 1952-1966. These letters, dating 1955-1966 and written between friends, discuss events and people.

Groups three and four were also obtained by Harold Martin from the individual recipients for use in writing his biography on McGill.

Subseries 14.6
Edward Weeks I papers, 1948-1973
Boxes 113-114

Scope and Content Note

Edward Weeks (February 19, 1898-March 14, 1989), editor and writer, was a friend of McGill. Weeks was also the editor of Atlantic Monthly (1938-1966) and senior consultant for Atlantic Monthly Press (1966-?) which published some of McGill's books and Ralph McGill, Reporter by Harold Martin.

Most of the materials in this subseries relate to the writing of Ralph McGill, Reporter, mainly in the form of correspondence. Edward Weeks compiled a list of names of those who had meaningful contact with McGill in some way and wrote to them asking "What was most memorable in your relationship with Ralph McGill?" This information was to be used by Harold Martin in writing the McGill biography. Other items include photographs and reviews.

The rest of the material in this subseries includes writings by Ralph McGill, writings about Ralph McGill, correspondence relating to McGill's book The South and Southerner, clippings, and miscellaneous notes on The Bible.

Box 116*Scope and Content Note

Subseries 14.8 contains materials that have been collected about Ralph McGill by the Stuart A. Rose Manuscript, Archives, and Rare Book Library (the Rose Library) over time. In 1972, Mr. David Estes, who was then head of the library, solicited donations of materials on Ralph McGill by those who knew him. The items that were donated, mainly in the form of correspondence, are included here.

Other materials contained in this subseries are writings by McGill, writings about McGill, information about awards and tributes, subject files, information about the Ralph McGill exhibit in the Rose Library, and Sandburg materials: Connemara. Most of this material is in the form of printed material and clippings.

Index 2: Index to Daily Editorial Columns

Ralph McGill's daily editorial column appeared in the Atlanta Constitution from June 20, 1938 through February 9, 1969. In 1950, the column was moved from the editorial page to the front page. As a rule, it appeared every day, the exceptions were a few Saturdays and times when he was on an extended trip or on vacation. Frequently, especially in the early years, guests filled in with columns on these occasions.

The index to the daily editorial columns is arranged alphabetically by subject and then chronologically (year month/date) under each heading. When an entry is broken down into subheadings, broad or general entries are list first, followed by subheadings in alphabetical order by subject.

Every column is entered in the index under at least one heading. These headings were not created from a single subject authority source. There is no entry when a subject is mentioned but not emphasized. Column titles are not included in this index. Guest columns are indexed only under the writer's name, not under the subject matter. Titles such as "Sen." or "Mrs." or "Dr." have been omitted unless needed to identify the person. See references are supplied to help located related matter and are listed directly under the main heading.
