Collection DescriptionBiographical Note

Norman Ogue Mustill (1931-2013) was an American artist, who primarily used collage as his medium. He was born in Montreal, Canada and was educated at the Montreal Museum of Art and Ecole Des Beaux Artes. During the 1950s, Mustill lived in New York (New York), Los Angeles (California), and Mexico City (Mexico). He moved to San Francisco (California) in 1960, which led to collaboration with filmmakers, painters, and poets of the beat generation. Mustill was not interested in being a public figure and avoided the art world. He adopted the middle name "Ogue," which he took from the fashion magazine Vogue to protest the fashionable.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of the papers of American artist Norman Ogue Mustill from 1950-2017 and includes art, printed material, and photographs. Most of the art has no title nor date. The printed material primarily contains zines created or co-created by Mustill. There is one photograph of cars on a highway, and the rest are of Mustill.

Arrangement Note

Arranged first by record type and then alphabetically.
