known of James's early life and education. It appears that he read law in Columbus at the firm of Thomas and Downing and entered the bar in 1849.

On October 2, 1851 James married Mary Elizabeth Dean (April 18, 1831) of Muscogee County, Georgia, the daughter of Miriam Eiland and Dr. David Dean, a planter. For the first three years after their marriage the couple lived at White Sulphur Springs, a fashionable health resort famous for its mineral springs. During this time James taught school. Their first child, Miriam Jacintha Norman (Minnie) was born on December 4, 1852. By 1854 the Norman family had moved to Alabama, first to Villula then to Union Springs. On July 27, 1854, James and Mary had a son, James D. Norman (Jimmy.) They also had two other sons, Ernest Norman, born July 4, 1857, and Samuel Marks Norman, born December 30, 1859, both of whom died in infancy. Frederick Dean Norman was born June 17, 1862.

James T. Norman volunteered for the Confederate Army in October 1861. He joined the Panola Guards, a unit comprised of men mostly from Union Springs, Alabama. James saw 19 months of active service, stationed in or near Mobile, Alabama, eastern Tennessee, northern Alabama, and Vicksburg, Mississippi. On May 1, 1863 James was captured in a battle at Port Gibson, a part of the Vicksburg Campaign. He was sent first to Alton, Illinois, and then on June 18, 1863 he arrived at Johnson's Island in Lake Erie, Ohio, where he spent the next 20 months. He was paroled on February 24, 1865 and sent to City Point, Virginia, returning home on March 15, 1865.

After the war he resumed his law practice in Union Springs with his former partner Isiah A Wilson. In 1879, James' son, James Dean Norman joined the practice. In 1882 James T. Norman was elected to the Alabama State senate and was reelected in 1884. He also served as the local attorney for the Central of Georgia Railroad.

He died at his home on December 11, 1895 and is buried at Oak Cemetery, Union Springs, Alabama. His wife, Mary, died on October 7, 1905 and his buried beside her husband in the Oak Hill Cemetery. The above biographical information was taken from Susan Lott Clark, Southern Letters and Life in the mid 1880s (Waycross, Georgia: Susan Lott Clark, 1993).

Scope and Content Note

The James T. Norman Papers span the dates of 1851 to 1897 and consist almost entirely of correspondence. The first letters are between James and Mary, while he was courting her. The next group of letters are written while James served in the Confederate Army and while he was imprisoned at Johnson's Island. There are a few letters written immediately after the war and a few items from 1870s-1890s. Also included are two notebooks at the end of the collection, one containing essay on a psalm and the other an address delivered by James T. Norman. An asterisk (*) denotes that a photocopy is included with original piece of correspondence.
