Collection Description

Biographical Note
Dennis O'Driscoll (1954-2012) was an Irish poet, essayist, critic, and editor. He was born on January 1, 1954, in Thurles, County Tipperary, Ireland. He was the son of James O'Driscoll and Catherine Lahart and had five siblings. He was educated by the Congregation of Christian Brothers before studying law at the University College in Dublin from 1972-1975. University College awarded him an honorary doctorate in literature in 2009.

O'Driscoll worked for the Office of the Revenue Commissioners, Ireland's internal revenue and customs service, for over thirty years, beginning his civil service at the age of 16. He wrote while retaining his position with the Office of the Revenue Commissioners, regarding himself as a civil servant first and a writer or a poet second. He also served on the council of the Irish United Nations Association from 1975-1980.

Before he began publishing his own poetry, O'Driscoll was widely known as an essayist and poetry reviewer for publications such as Hibernia, The Crane Bag, and The Times Literary Supplement. He wrote nine books of poetry, three chapbooks, and two collections of essays and reviews. His best-known poem is "Someone."

O'Driscoll's awards included the Lannan Literary Award (1999), E.M. Forster Award of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, and Argosy Irish Non-Fiction Book of the Year Award. O'Driscoll also judged many major awards, including the Griffin Poetry Prizes, T.S. Eliot Prize, Cholmondeley Awards (Society of Authors), and Geoffrey Faber Award.

O'Driscoll married Julie O'Callaghan, a writer, in September 1985. He moved to Naas, County Kildare, in 1997 and lived there until his sudden death on December 24, 2012.

Scope and Content Note
The collection consists of the papers of Irish poet, Dennis O'Driscoll, and contains audiovisual material, correspondence, diaries, his writings, writings by others, printed material, and subject files from 1978-2012. Most of the correspondence is organized into folders and labeled with the name of the correspondent. His writings are organized into folders and labeled with the title of the work. There is a significant amount of material reflecting O'Driscoll's professional relationship with Seamus Heaney, including correspondence and annotated drafts of manuscripts, particularly those of O'Driscoll's biography of Heaney, Stepping Stones. Boxes identified as containing printed material generally contain loose printed material, including newspaper and magazine clippings and articles printed from the Internet that are not organized in a distinct way or by an obvious method. Most of the subject files also contain mainly printed material, but these are organized by people's names. Material in both subject files and printed material reflects O'Driscoll’s work or documents the activities of O’Driscoll and writers in his circle. Audio and video recordings primarily include interviews of and readings by poets and writers, including Lucile Clifton, Jack Gilbert, Allen Ginsberg, Eamon Grennan, Seamus Heaney, Rita Ann Higgins, Kazuo Ishiguro, Michael Longley, Derek Mahon, W.S. Merwin, Paul Muldoon, Sharon Olds, and Octavio Paz. Many of the recordings on the audio cassette tapes are from British Broadcasting Company (BBC) and Raidió Teilifís Éireann (RTE) radio programs that O'Driscoll recorded himself. Most of the video cassette tapes include recordings conducted by the Lannan Foundation. Born digital material includes correspondence, interview files, and materials relating to O'Driscoll's biography on Heaney. Finally, the collection includes O'Driscoll's diaries from 1979-2012.
