Collection Description

Historical Note

The Southeastern Arts, Media and Education (SAME) project was a non-profit multi-arts organization for the gay and lesbian community in Atlanta, Georgia whose mission was to use the arts to implement social change. SAME produced over 70 plays, original film and video works, and published Amethyst, a semi-annual journal of creative writing and visual arts. Rebecca Ranson was the Executive Director of SAME project for twelve years, directing a number of the performances produced by the organization. Frances Pici worked as stage manager, assistant director, and performer for many of Ranson's directorial endeavors. SAME operated from 1984-1996.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of materials relating to the Southeastern Arts, Media, and Education project (SAME) from 1972-1992 and collected by Frances Pici in her capacity as stage manager, assistant director, and actor. The collection includes materials relating to the production of plays, programs, correspondence, promotional material, reviews, photographs, SAME administrative material, video recordings, and a sculpture. Materials relating to plays include annotated scripts, stage management notes, programs, photographs, and publicity for productions of Family Album, Glass Heart, I See Myself Changing, Lavender Legends, Psycho Beach Party, Texas Two Stepping with the Girls, and WASPS. Correspondence includes some letters to playwrights, but mainly consists of letters and cards of congratulations to Pici. SAME's administrative records include their governance mission statement and cast member policy statement. SAME promotional material consists of flyers, invitations, and solicitations sent by SAME to highlight productions, membership, and events. Also included are video recordings of Family Album and I See Myself Changing as well as one promotional spot aired on television for the play, WASPS. There is also a sculpture created by Rebecca Ranson and given to Frances Pici.

Arrangement Note

Arranged in alphabetical order.
