Collection Description

Biographical Note
Rebecca Ranson, Southern lesbian playwright and author, was born on September 9, 1943. She was one of three children along with her sister, Laura (Ranson) Burns, and her brother, Murphy Dale Ranson. She attended the University of Georgia, Athens, and received a Bachelor of Arts in Radio, Television, and Film in 1970. She earned a Master of Fine Arts in Playwriting at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, in 1975. She married Charles Richard Engle in 1965 and had one son, Charles. They divorced in 1967, and she was later married to William "Coke" Ariail, III. During her marriage to Ariail, she began a relationship with Miranda Campabis that lasted from the late 1970s through the early 1980s. She began her career as a creative writing instructor in North Carolina in 1978, and from 1979-1981 worked at WVSP Public Radio in Warrenton, North Carolina, as a project and workshop director, media producer, and writer. In 1982, she served as Playwright-in-Residence for The Road Company in Johnson City, Tennessee, and from 1983-1985, she was Writer-in-Residence at Harrisburg Area Community College. In 1986, she was hired as the Executive Director of the Southeastern Arts, Media and Education Project (SAME), a multi-arts organization for the gay and lesbian community in Atlanta, Georgia, and served in that capacity for twelve years, receiving the Robert Chesley Foundation Lifetime Achievement award in 2004.

Ranson has written over thirty plays, including The Incarceration of Annie (1983), Desperadoes: A Trilogy (1982), Warren (1984), Blood on Blood (1987), For Love and for Life (1987), Secrets (1988), and A Glorietta (2000). Warren was one of the first plays concerning AIDS to be produced and was written after her friend, Warren Johnston, died of AIDS in April 1984. She started writing a novel and conducted interviews with members of the organization, People with AIDS (PWA); nurses; doctors; partners; families; and friends in San Francisco, California, and Atlanta, Georgia. This research led to the creation of the play Higher Ground in 2010.

Scope and Content Note
The collection consists of the papers of Rebecca Ranson including writings, correspondence, journals, subject files, printed material, photographs, audiovisual material, and born digital material that document her career as a playwright, author, and activist. Writings include plays, poems, short stories, drafts of novels, and other written material by Ranson and focus on her plays, including in-progress drafts, final versions, and copies annotated for performances. There are also freehand and brainstorming notes, often reflecting the subject matter in her plays, but also on topics from her formative years such as issues with her parents, becoming pregnant at 17, and her realization of her changing sexuality. There are also writings by others which include poems and short stories sent to Ranson by people with whom Ranson was personally involved as well as inmates that Ranson met through her prison activism and members of Atlanta's LGBT community.

Correspondence is both personal and professional in nature. Personal correspondents include Ranson's sister, Laura Burns; her second husband, William "Coke" Ariail, III; her son, Charlie Engle; and a lover, Miranda Cambanis. Also included are letters she received through her work with prisoners in North Carolina as part of her program, "In-house Speech and Theater Training for North Carolina Prisons." Professional correspondence documents her performances, her writing, and her career as a writer and teacher including letters of recommendation and application letters for fellowships and endowments. The journals contain Ranson's reflections on her professional life as a playwright and researcher and on her personal life. Some of the common themes are Ranson's personal romantic relationships, interactions with her friends and families, and confessions of struggle and guilt with life issues as well as many events in Atlanta history, both in the gay community as well as the city's history in general.

Subject files include research files for Ranson's oral history projects including transcripts of interviews, as well as subject files on topics of interest to Ranson and about organizations with which Ranson closely affiliated. Interview files contain transcripts from interviews Ranson used for her work on eight distinct projects. There are also personal files containing information on Ranson's family history, employment history, and resumes, as well as some of her notes and notebooks that remain unidentified. Printed material includes newspaper clippings, playbills, promotional material, play programs, newsletters and magazines, memorials, and other material relating to Ranson's activism in the Atlanta LGBT community. The newspaper clippings consist mainly of reviews of Ranson's plays. Though the chronology of the clippings extends from the mid-1970s-2010, most of the clippings document 1981 to 1994. The playbills, promotional material, and programs primarily relate to performances of Ranson's plays. The newsletters and magazines pertain primarily to LGBT issues in Atlanta; there are several issues of Pulse, Amethyst, and Et Cetera, all LGBT-themed publications. The memorials are mainly funeral programs for members of the Atlanta LGBT community who died of AIDS.

Photographs consist of events, people, and performances along with negatives and slides of photographs in the collection. There are photographs of marches, film festivals, special events, and aspects of Ranson's everyday life, as well as a number of photographs of unidentified events. There are also headshots of actors as well as photographs of people that Ranson knew or worked with; photographs of Ranson's son, Charles Engle, and his family; and photographs that appear to depict people in the early 1900s. Photographs of performances include cast photographs and still photographs of play performances. Audiovisual material contains audiotapes, compact discs, microcassettes, reel-to-reel tapes, u-matic cassettes, and VHS cassettes. The collection primarily contains audiotapes of interviews Ranson used as research for her work, transcripts of which can be found in the research files series. The audiotapes also contain recordings of performances of Ranson's plays, mainly Texas Two Steppin' with the Girls and Warren. The videocassettes and microcassettes contain performances of Ranson's plays, along with material pertaining to the Atlanta LGBT community. Born digital materials are restricted until they can be processed, but include writings by Ranson as well as correspondence.
Arrangement Note
Organized into eight series: (1) Writings, (2) Correspondence, (3) Journals, (4) Subject files, (5) Printed material, (6) Photographs, (7) Audiovisual, and (8) Born digital materials.

Series 1
Writings, 1886, 1960-2004
Boxes 1-14

Scope and Content Note
The series consists of writings by Rebecca Ranson and others. Writings by Ranson include plays, poems, short stories, drafts of novels, and other written material. The largest portion of the subseries consists of copies of Ranson's plays, including in-progress drafts, final versions, and copies annotated for performances. The subseries also includes a number of folders containing freehand and brainstorming notes, both from Ranson's time at college and from her professional career. Ranson's handwritten notes often reflect the material in her printed plays; many of the handwritten papers from Ranson's younger years discuss her problems with her parents, especially after becoming pregnant at age 17. These papers also discuss her growing realization (in early adulthood) of her changing sexuality. Also included in this subseries are published booklets compiling interviews that Ranson conducted with residents of the Edgewood and Kirkwood neighborhoods in Atlanta, Georgia. Writings by others include poems and short stories sent to Ranson by other writers, including some with whom Ranson was romantically involved, especially William "Coke" Ariail, III, Miranda Cambanis, and Mendy Knott. Some of the work was created by inmates that Ranson met through her prison activism, and some was created by members of Atlanta's LGBT community that Ranson knew personally.

Arrangement Note
Organized into two subseries: (1.1) Writings by Rebecca Ranson, (1.2) Writings by others
Subseries 1.1
Writings by Rebecca Ranson, 1966-2000
Boxes 1-11, 58

Scope and Content Note
The subseries consists of plays, poems, short stories, drafts of novels, and other written material by Rebecca Ranson. The largest portion of the subseries consists of copies of Ranson's plays, including in-progress drafts, final versions, and copies annotated for performances. Ranson's plays often deal with themes of family conflict, personal discovery, and self-realization. Blood on Blood, for example, examines a woman named Maria who becomes sexually involved with her husband's brother, creating a deadly love triangle. Delicate Matters concerns a woman who goes in search of, and eventually finds, the child she gave up for adoption years before. The Desperadoes trilogy examines three women spending time in an isolated cabin who discuss their failed marriages, which leads to two of them becoming romantic partners. Ranson's Brownie Broadway dialogues, based on her alter ego, discuss Ranson's inner emotions at various points in her life and her journey from teenage love to middle age. Many of Ranson's plays are set in Appalachia, especially western North Carolina and East Tennessee. There are also a number of personal writings in the form of free form, handwritten notes, both from Ranson's time as a college student and from her professional career. Ranson's handwritten notes often reflect the material in her printed plays. Many of the handwritten papers from Ranson's younger years discuss her problems with her parents, especially upon becoming pregnant at age 17, and her realization of her changing sexuality. The material on one of Ranson's projects, AIDS interviews, includes transcripts and markups of conversations Ranson had with other patients at the San Francisco hospital where her close friend Warren Johnston died (the inspiration for her play, Warren), along with Ranson's narratives and commentary on their lives. This subseries also contains a few published booklets compiling interviews that Ranson conducted with residents of the Edgewood and Kirkwood neighborhoods in Atlanta, Georgia.

Subseries 1.2
Writings by others, 1886, 1969-2004
Boxes 11-14

Scope and Content Note
The subseries consists of poems and short stories sent to Ranson by other writers, including people with whom Ranson was romantically involved, especially William "Coke" Ariail III (her second husband), Miranda Cambanis, and North Carolina poet Mendy Knott. Some of the work was created by inmates that Ranson met during her prison activism, including her program, "In-house Speech and Theater Training for North Carolina Prisons," in which she taught playwriting and staged productions involving the inmates.

Series 2
Correspondence, 1860-2012 (bulk 1966-1999)
Boxes 15-20

Scope and Content Note
The series consists of both personal and professional correspondence. Primary correspondents include Ranson's sister, Laura Burns; her second husband, William "Coke" Ariail, III; her son, Charlie Engle; and a lover, Miranda Cambanis. The early letters are primarily between Laura Burns and Ranson regarding their lives and their mother. Letters from Ariail and Cambanis make up the bulk of the letters from the late 1970s through the early 1980s. These letters were written to Ranson during her time spent in upstate New York teaching a drama class to prisoners in Attica and Elmira correctional facilities. Also during this time, she received a number of letters from her work with prisoners in North Carolina as part of her program, "In-house Speech and Theater Training for North Carolina Prisons," as well as letters from prisoners in the Camp Hill prison in Pennsylvania, particularly one prisoner named Jimmy Baldwin.

Following that period, the letters take a more professional turn, and document her performances, writing, and career as a writer and teacher. There are a number of recommendation and application letters for programs including a National Endowment for the Arts Fellowship in 1989, the Atlanta Mayor's Fellowship in 1993, and Duke University's William Bartram World Program in 1980.

Also included are copies of letters dated from 1860 between John Woolford and his wife, "Mollie," as well letters from Thomas and Frances Woolford to others. There is also a Woolford genealogy including transcripts of the John Woolford's 1860 letters.

Series 3
Journals, 1954-2007
Boxes 21-33 and OBV1

Scope and Content Note
The series consists of Ranson's journals from 1954-2007 as well as a scrapbook of newspaper clippings (1978-1986). The journals contain reflections on her professional life as a playwright and researcher and on her personal life. Some of the common themes are Ranson's personal romantic relationships, interactions with her friends and families, and confessions of struggle and guilt with life issues. She also chronicles many events in Atlanta history, both in the gay community as well as the city's history in general. She frequently comments on impending playwriting projects as well as many professional issues that stem from writing and directing theater. She also describes her private thoughts of and reactions to the interviews she conducted with AIDS patients, compiled as part of her research. For transcripts of these interviews, see Series 4: Subject files.

Series 4
Subject files, 1948, 1972-2005
Boxes 34-41

Scope and Content Note
The series consists of research files for Ranson's oral history projects including transcripts of interviews, as well as subject files on organizations with which Ranson closely affiliated. Interview files contain transcripts from interviews Ranson used for her work. The eight projects included the "About Us" project which interviews residents of Cabbagetown, Reynoldstown, and Kirkwood, Atlanta to understand the transitional nature of those neighborhoods; the AID Atlanta project for which she interviewed patients in the AID Atlanta program; the AIDS Project which contains transcripts from interviews of AIDS patients in San Francisco; the Community Arts Partnership Project of Cape Charles, Virginia, documenting its history as primarily an industrial center; a project on persons with disabilities within the Atlanta area; and the Stormy Road Onward that focuses on the homeless population that were moved into single occupancy government assisted housing.

Also included in the series are subject files that detail Ranson's work with a number of organizations including Arts in Atlanta Project, People's Art Action, Queer Theater, The Road Company, Southeastern Arts Media and Education project (SAME), and the VSA Arts of Georgia. There are also personal files containing information on Ranson's family history, legal records, employment history, and resumes, as well as some of her notes and notebooks that remain unidentified.

Arrangement Note
Organized into two subseries: (4.1) Interview transcripts, and (4.2) Subject files.
Subseries 4.1
Interview transcripts, circa 1984-2005
Boxes 34-37

Scope and Content Note
The subseries consists of interview files for Ranson's oral history projects. The interviews are arranged by project but are mostly filed at item level, with the exception of two projects, The Crim and NAMES projects. Ranson transcribed her interviews of people for eight projects. The "About Us" project includes interviews of residents of the neighborhoods of Cabbagetown, Reynoldstown, and Kirkwood in Atlanta to understand the transitional nature of those neighborhoods. For the AID Atlanta project, Ranson interviewed patients in the AID Atlanta program to document the battle against AIDS in the Atlanta area, and for the AIDS project, she interviewed AIDS patients in San Francisco to document one of the most predominant areas affected by the AIDS crisis. The Community Arts Partnership Project material contains interviews of residents of Cape Charles, Virginia, that document its history as an industrial center. The interviews for the Crim Project document the neighborhood kids surrounding Crim High School in Atlanta. Sixth, there is the legacy project that documents persons with disabilities within the Atlanta area. Also included is the NAMES Project for which Ranson interviewed participants in the NAMES Project foundation in Atlanta, a foundation committed to creating the AIDS Memorial quilt in memory of Atlanta AIDS victims. Last, there is Stormy Road Onward that focused on the homeless population that now live in single occupancy government assisted housing throughout Atlanta.

Arrangement Note
Arranged in alphabetical order by project and then by interviewee.

Series 5
Printed material, 1919, 1925, 1970-2010
Boxes 42-46, OP1-OP5

Scope and Content Note
The series consists of newspaper clippings, playbills, promotional material, play programs, newsletters and magazines, memorials, and other material relating to Ranson's activism in the Atlanta LGBT community. The newspaper clippings mainly contain reviews of Ranson's plays, but there is also a substantial amount of material relating to Ranson's work with inmates in North Carolina correctional facilities in the mid-1970s, including Joan Little. Also included are a number of articles on Warren Johnston, who died of AIDS in April 1984 and inspired Ranson's play Warren. Though the chronology of the clippings extends from the mid-1970s-2010, most of the clippings document 1981-1994, a period when many of Ranson's plays were performed in and around Atlanta on a regular basis.

The playbills, promotional material, and programs primarily relate to performances of Ranson's plays, but there are also playbills and programs for other plays performed in Atlanta, often with LGBT themes, particularly those performed at 7 Stages in the Little Five Points neighborhood. The newsletters and magazines mainly pertain to LGBT issues in Atlanta; there are several issues of Pulse, Amethyst, and Et Cetera, all LGBT-themed publications. The SHE newsletter for November 1977 contains a profile of Miranda Cambanis, a former lover of Ranson. The memorials included in this series are mainly funeral programs for members of the Atlanta LGBT community who died of AIDS. The files on conferences, activism, and marches contain a variety of material from LGBT-themed conferences, Ranson's involvement in SAME, HIV/AIDS activism, and the 1987 March on Washington for Lesbian and Gay Rights. There is also a small amount of material in these particular files on independent Atlanta booksellers, who often hosted events of interest to Ranson.

Series 6
Photographs, 1900-2013 (bulk 1950-2013)
Boxes 47-54, OP2

Scope and Content Note
The series consists of photographs of events, people and performances including marches, film festivals, special events, and aspects of Ranson's everyday life. Many of the events are related to the SAME arts organization, of which Ranson served as executive director. There are a number of photographs of unidentified events, most of which appear to be dinners and receptions. There are headshots of actors as well as photographs of people that Ranson knew or worked with. Of special note are photographs of Ranson's son, Charles Engle, and his family. There are also some photographs that appear to depict people in the early 1900s. Also included are cast photographs and still photographs of play performances. The plays depicted in these photographs include plays written by Ranson along with plays written by other people that Ranson either acted in or directed. Negatives and slides are included and many duplicate the photographs.

Arrangement Note
Organized into four subseries: (6.1) Events, (6.2) People, (6.3) Productions, and (6.4) Negatives and slides.
Subseries 6.1
Events, circa 1982-1999
Boxes 47-51

Scope and Content Note
The subseries includes photographs of marches, film festivals, special events, and aspects of Ranson's everyday life. Many of the events are related to the SAME arts organization, including the Out on Film, film festival, of which Ranson served as executive director. Other events featured include Atlanta Pride, the National March on Washington for Gay and Lesbian Civil Rights, and images of the AIDS Quilt on the National Mall. There are a number of photographs of unidentified events, most of which appear to be dinners, exhibitions, and receptions.

Arrangement Note
Arranged in alphabetical order by event name.

Series 7
Audiovisual material, 1976-2002
Boxes 55, AV1-AV4

Scope and Content Note
The series contains audiocassettes, compact discs, microcassettes, reel-to-reel tapes, u-matic cassettes, and VHS cassettes. The series is composed primarily of audiocassettes of interviews Ranson conducted as research for her work (for transcripts of some of these interviews, see Series 4: Subject files). Of special note are several interviews with Joan Little, an African American inmate held in North Carolina who was acquitted of the 1974 murder of a prison guard on grounds of resisting sexual assault. The audiocassettes also contain recordings of performances of Ranson's plays, mainly Texas Two Steppin’ with the Girls and Warren. Audiocassettes are either labeled on one side only or have the same label on both sides, except as indicated, and those containing liner notes differing from the label on the tape itself are also indicated. The videocassettes and microcassettes contain performances of Ranson's plays, along with material pertaining to the Atlanta LGBT community.

Arrangement Note
Arranged in alphabetical order by project name.
