Collection Description*Biographical Note

Media pioneer, artist and icon of Southern queer history Dick Richards (1946-2018) produced the weekly American Music Show on Atlanta public access cable television for more than two decades, making it the longest running show of its kind in the world, from 1981-2005. The show, along with his Funtone USA record label, both of which Richards ran out of his Inman Park home, helped launch the careers of musicians, drag performers, and entertainers, several of whom went on to achieve national fame.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of 450 DVD copies of video recordings of Dick Richards' projects including The American Music Show, Funtone USA record label, and the DeAundra Peek's Teenage Music Club television program. There are a number of appearances in the recordings by prominent Atlanta contributors including RuPaul, LaHome, Tom Zarilli, and Diamond Lil. Also, there are recordings of Dick Richard's projects like American Music Show, but also shows recorded off television (some recordings may have been made using camcorders). The collection as a whole appears to be a video scrapbook of a particular type of "in your face" queerness. In addition, there are DVDs (not reformatted from an unknown original like the majority of the recordings in the collection) including RuPaul's Star Booty trilogy as well as DeAundra Peek performances and other Funtone USA performances.

Arrangement Note

Arranged in original order. Titles are supplied by Dick Richards and David Goldman.
