Collection Description

Biographical Note

William H. Scott (1848-1910), was born a slave in Virginia on June 15, 1848. In April of 1862, he escaped and joined the 12th Massachusetts Infantry Regiment. Following the Civil War, Scott studied at Howard University Law School. He taught newly freed slaves in Virginia until he was forced to flee the state as a result of racist intimidation. He then enrolled at Wayland Seminary and was ordained a Baptist minister in 1880. He served churches in Washington, D.C., Virginia, and Massachusetts. He established "Scott's Boston Cheap Bookstore" in the 1880s, selling it in 1892 when he moved to Boston to serve as pastor of Calvary Baptist Church. Scott was an advocate for African American rights. He founded the Massachusetts Racial Protective Association in March 1896; he was one of 29 original members of the Niagara Movement; and he helped organize the National Independent Political League in 1908. Scott died in Woburn, Massachusetts, on June 27, 1910.

William H. Scott, Jr. (1887-1976) was the son of William H. Scott and Laura Ann Fields Scott. In 1904, at the age of 17, he joined the Company L of the 6th Massachusetts Regiment, a "colored company" of the United States Army. He enrolled at Harvard in 1906 and attended for one year. Scott followed his father's interest in politics and was active in the National Equal Rights League. He wrote for radical periodicals, including The Clarion and The New Negro. Scott married Mary E. Robinson in 1907 and they had two children: William J. Scott and Henry Thompson Scott. In 1917 Scott enlisted in the Army again and was admitted to the Infantry Central Officers' training school in Camp Pike, Arkansas. He was commissioned Second Lieutenant in the Officers' Reserve Corp on January 15, 1919. He spent the same year in attendance at the Northeastern College of Law. He eventually spent most of his working life employed by the Monsanto Chemical Company in Everett, Massachusetts. While employed for Monsanto, Scott also did freelance work for the Baltimore Afro-American as a photographer. He married Lillian Wilson Gaskin in 1948 after the death of his first wife in 1946. William H. Scott, Jr. died in 1976.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of the papers of the William H. Scott family from 1848-1982. The papers of William H. Scott, Sr. include correspondence, personal papers, writings, photographs, and printed material. The majority of the correspondence documents both Scott's religious activity and his political activism, including his involvement with the Anti-Imperialist League, the National Independent Political League, and the Negro Baptist Ministers Conference. Personal papers include a number of scrapbooks of newspaper clippings from African American newspapers concerning politics, African American history, and family history. Printed material consists of rare broadsides, programs and announcements concerning political and religious activity in the African American community in Massachusetts and Washington, D.C., including activities sponsored by groups such as the Boston Suffrage League, the New England Suffrage League, and St. John's Baptist Church in Woburn, Massachusetts. The series also includes a Civil War era sword reportedly captured by Scott during the Battle of Fredericksburg.

The papers of William H. Scott, Jr. include correspondence, personal papers, writings, photographs, subject files, and printed material. Correspondence consists mostly of letters written by William H. Scott, Jr. to his wife while he was serving in the military at Camp Pike, Arkansas, from 1918-1919. The correspondence details black life in the U.S. Army during the Jim Crow era. Writings include a number of short essays, as well as material relating to a biography of William H. Scott, Sr. Photographs are mostly of family members and many were taken by William H. Scott, Jr. Subject files consist of material relating to subjects of interest to Scott and to organizations with which he may have been involved. Printed material primarily includes newspaper clippings relating to Scott and the Scott family.

Arrangement Note

Organized into two series: 1) William H. Scott, Sr. papers and 2) William H. Scott, Jr. papers.

Description of Series

Series 1: William H. Scott, Sr. papers, 1848-1910

Series 2: William H. Scott, Jr. papers, 1906-1982

Series 1William H. Scott, Sr. papers, 1848-1910*Boxes 1-3, OP1-3, XOP1, BV1-7*Scope and Content Note

The series consists of the papers of William H. Scott, Sr. from 1848-1910, including correspondence, personal papers, writings, photographs and printed material. Correspondence primarily documents the religious activity and political activism of Scott, particularly his involvement with the Anti-Imperialist League, the National Negro American Political League, and the Negro Baptist Ministers Conference. Personal papers include financial records, family marriage and death records, the family bible, and a Civil War era sword. Also included in Scott's personal papers are seven scrapbooks of clippings documenting African American history and politics, as well as Scott family history. Many scrapbooks are annotated.

Writings include numerous sermons and speeches penned by Scott. Photographs are primarily of Scott family members. Finally, printed material includes fliers, programs and clippings documenting African American political activity in Massachusetts and Washington, D.C. during this period, including Scott's personal involvement. Printed material from organizations such as the Boston Suffrage League, the New England Suffrage League, and St. John's Baptist Church in Woburn, Massachusetts are included.
