Collection Description

Biographical Note

Arthur Hawley Scouten, history educator and author, was born February 15, 1910 in Kapropita, Kenya, son of Oren and Margaret Fraser Scouten. The Scouten family moved to the United States in 1920. Scouten attended Louisiana State University (B.A., 1935; M. A., 1938; Ph.D., 1942). He began his teaching career at Texas A. and M. College (Instructor, 1942-1943), and went on to teach at the University of Texas-Austin (Instructor, 1943-1946), Auburn University (Assistant Professor, 1946-1947), the University of Pennsylvania (Assistant Professor and Professor, 1947-1980; Professor Emeritus, 1980-), University of Warwick, England (Visiting Professor, 1973), University of Delaware (Distinguished Visiting Professor, 1981), and American College in Paris (Visiting Professor, 1986).

Scouten edited several publications including Ten English Farces (edited with Leo Hughes; Austin: University of Texas Press, 1948); two volumes of The London Stage: 1660-1800, Part Three (editor, Carbondale: Southern Illinois University Press, 1968-), A Bibliography of the Writings of Jonathan Swift, Second Edition (edited with Herman Teerink; Philadelphia: University of Pennsylvania Press, 1963); The London Stage: 1660-1800, Part 1, Country Gentleman by Sir Robert Howard and George Villiers (edited with R. D. Hume; London: Dent, 1976); The Revels History of Drama in English, Volume 5: 1660-1750 (edited with J. Loftis, R. Southern, and M. Jones; 1976); and The Poetry of Jonathan Swift (Los Angeles: William Andrews Clark Memorial Library, University of California, 1981). He also served as a consultant for MLA (1947-1973), Philol Quarterly (1960-1975), Restoration (1977-1980), and 18th Century Life (1974-).

Honors received by Scouten include fellowships from the Ford Foundation (1953-1954), the Guggenheim Foundation (1954-1955), the Folger Shakespeare Library (1955), and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of the papers of Arthur H. Scouten from 1944-1987. The papers include correspondence from Robert Penn Warren, Cleanth Brooks, Thomas Hazzard Thompson, Allen Tate, and John Updike to Arthur H. Scouten, and from Scouten to Linda M. Matthews. The Warren letters, dating from 1944-1986, relate primarily to Warren's professional life as a teacher and writer, as well as to Scouten's career as a professor of English. Warren's letters contain comments upon the work of other scholars whom Scouten brought to his attention. Although Scouten's replies are not included, the letter from Scouten to Matthews helps explain the context in which Warren's letters were written. In the letters Scouten is referred to as "Joe," a nickname he received from Senator Huey Long of Louisiana. Warren signed his letters, "Red." Also included are two literary articles.

Arrangement Note

Arranged in chronological order.
