Collection Description

Biographical Note
Ron Sherman is a photographer in Atlanta, Georgia, specializing in black and white photographs documenting Georgia, politics, sports, nature, and portraiture. Sherman was born in Cleveland, Ohio, and obtained a master's degree from Syracuse University, moving to Atlanta in 1971. His work has been published in Newsweek, Time, Life, Business Week, and Sports Illustrated, and he has published his photographs in the books, Atlanta: The Making of a World Class City (1999) and America the Beautiful: Atlanta (2013). His work has also been featured in publications and multi-media productions from companies such as Coca-Cola, IBM, Eastman Kodak, Georgia Power, and the Southern Company.

Scope and Content Note
The collection consists of 747 silver gelatin prints by photographer Ron Sherman documenting Southern politics, business, and culture from 1970 to 1988. Political figures depicted include Jimmy Carter, Maynard Jackson, Andrew Young, Julian Bond, George Wallace, Lester Maddox, Shirley Chisholm, Sargent Shriver, and others. There also a number of photographs of Coretta Scott King at civil rights events and the groundbreaking of the King historic site in Atlanta, Georgia, in 1975 along with a number of photographs from the United States Conference of Mayors meeting in Atlanta in 1971. Other events depicted include a 1971 Ku Klux Klan rally at Stone Mountain; the 1974 baseball game at which Hank Aaron hit the record-breaking home run number 715; the 1973 Atlanta Tennis Classic; the 1971 court-martial of My Lai massacre participant Ernest Medina; the 1972 fire and refinery-tank farm explosion in Doraville, Georgia; and other Atlanta-area events.

Arrangement Note
Arranged in alphabetical order according to Sherman’s original classification scheme.
