Collection Description

Biographical Note

Mary Elizabeth Spence, (1865-1962), the only child of A.K. Spence and his wife, Catherine Thompson Mackie, was born in Michigan on July 4, 1865. Like the children of other white faculty members, Mary Spence was educated at Fisk. She obtained her B.A. in 1887 and her M.A. in 1893, before going on to Oberlin for her Ph.D. She returned to Fisk where she became a professor of classical languages and literature. Mary Spence died in Nashville, Tennessee in 1962.

A.K. (Adam Knight) Spence (1831-1900) was born in Rhynie, Aberdeenshire, Scotland in 1831. His father was a physician who, after of few years of practice in his native Scotland, decided to immigrate to America. The family settled near Ann Arbor, Michigan where the young Adam Spence helped run his family's farm after the death of his father. Several years after his father's death he finished high school at the preparatory department of Oberlin College. He went on to obtain his B.A. from Michigan University in 1858 and stayed on at Michigan to teach languages for 12 years. In 1870, Rev. Erastus Milo Cravath, a friend from his days at Oberlin, asked him to come to Fisk to add a College Department to the Normal School. He became the second principal of Fisk and through his efforts graduated the first College class of four members in 1875. Spence remained on the faculty at Fisk until his death on April 24, 1900. He was a participant in the culture of the University, helping to raise funds for the Jubilee Singers, writing and teaching poetry, as well as teaching Greek and Latin.

Scope and Content Note

The Mary E. Spence papers are composed mainly of personal and family correspondence. The collection covers a time span of approximately eighty years from 1853-1950. As such it affords insight into the career of two generations of Fisk professors, Mary E. Spence and her father, A.K. Spence.

The papers of Mary Spence consist mainly of personal and family correspondence, and include an autograph book (1882-1883) dating from Mary's time as a student at Fisk, as well as her address book. The family correspondence mainly includes a series of letters (1888-1889) to Mary from her parents while she was at Oberlin and letters from her Chase family relatives. The personal correspondence is made up of letters from friends and colleagues. There is also a small collection of letters dealing with Fisk matters. Other materials include personal writings such as creative essays and receipts.

The Spence family papers consist of correspondence between A. K. Spence, family members, friends and colleagues. There is an extensive series of letters between Adam Spence and his sister Julia Spence (Chase) and her husband Frederick A. Chase and correspondence from his brothers Thomas Spence and Edwin A. Spence. Also included are letters to John Wesley Work, Jr., the composer and professor at Fisk, and a general collection of Fisk University correspondence. The collection contains a variety of printed materials relating to black educational institutions (particularly Fisk) and churches.
