Collection DescriptionBiographical Note

Stephen P. Strickland was born on November 25, 1933 in Birmingham, Alabama, to Kelly Parks and Alice Winn (Peeples) Strickland. He earned a bachelor's degree from Emory University and continued his education at Johns Hopkins University completing his master's in 1966 and his Ph.D. in 1971. He married Tamara Gunsard, whose parents were Russian immigrants, on June 15, 1962, and the couple had one son, Jay.

Strickland moved to Washington, D.C., in 1959 and began work as a congressional staff assistant to Representative George Huddleston of Alabama. He later worked as a congressional staff fellow for the American Political Science Association from 1965-1966 and was a staff associate on the American Council on Education between 1967-1969. He was also the President and Treasurer of The Public Record. In 1967, Strickland was recruited to be the Deputy Director of the White House Fellows Program in the Lyndon Johnson Administration and succeeded founding director Tom Carr in 1968 to become director of the White House Fellows Program in the first year of the Nixon Administration.

Strickland was the chief executive, president and chairman of the National Peace Foundation, a precursor to the U.S. Institute of Peace from the mid-1990s to 2000, as well as senior fellow for the United Nations Foundation, managing global polio eradication efforts. He was also founding director of the University of California at San Francisco's health policy program, vice president of the Aspen Institute, a founder and the first chairman of the Choral Arts Society board, former president of the British Institute, and founder of Music at the Supreme Court.

Strickland died on April 9, 2015.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of the papers of political bureaucrat Stephen P. Strickland including correspondence, writings, printed materials, and photographs documenting his work in the White House and as a congressional assistant as well as his leadership of the National Peace Foundation and Music at the Supreme Court. There is a considerable amount of correspondence that contains letters to ambassadors as well as other state dignitaries. There is additional correspondence regarding his book on Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black, Hugo Black and the Supreme Court. There are also materials relating to his wife Tamara's family and a small amount of correspondence to members of the Gunsard family living in the former Soviet republic of Georgia. In addition, there are a significant amount of papers about Strickland mother's family, the Peeples, as well as photographs of members of the family and many files Strickland kept for his own research on various topics.

Arrangement Note

Arranged alphabetically by record type.
