Collection Description*Biographical Note

Judge Elbert Parr Tuttle (1897-1996) was a member of the United States Court of Appeals for the 5th Circuit from 1954, and served as Chief Judge of that court from 1960 until his 70th birthday in 1967. While he "retired" to Senior Judge status a year later, in 1968, he remained actively involved in Court work until very near his death and sat on cases until 1990.

The "old" 5th Circuit, prior to its division in 1981, had jurisdiction over six states of the American South, in which it served as the federal appellate court one level below the Supreme Court, and comprised the country's largest and busiest Constitutional court during the period of the civil rights movement. Tuttle's court enforced and expanded the mandates of the Supreme Court, and made many procedural innovations to provide meaningful enforcement of the law in respect to civil rights plaintiffs. The Court has been widely credited with sufficiently preserving the rule of law in the American South, in the face of massive and often personal resistance, to allow a more peaceful and successful result in the Civil Rights revolution than might otherwise have been possible. On June 4, 1996, when he had been hospitalized with his final illness, the Atlanta Constitution called Elbert Tuttle "perhaps the most influential civil rights judge in Southern history." Prior to his appointment to the 5th Circuit, Tuttle had been prominent in law, politics, and in the military, and he continued to be active in civic affairs throughout his life.

Born in Pasadena, California, the son of Guy Harmon Tuttle and Margie Etta (nee: Parr) Tuttle, Elbert Tuttle spent much of his childhood in Honolulu, Hawaii, after a brief period in Washington, DC. He graduated from the multi-racial Punahou School in 1914 and entered Cornell, where he received his degree in 1918. In 1919 he married Sara Sutherland, of Newnan, Georgia, whom he had earlier met on his first trip to the South. He was editor in chief of the student newspaper at Cornell, and apart from brief service in World War I, he was employed as a journalist before his return to Cornell for law school. He received his LLB (law degree) in 1923. After settling on Atlanta as a good location for a new law practice, Tuttle founded, with his brother-in-law William A. Sutherland, the law firm now known as Sutherland, Asbill, and Brennan.

From 1923 to 1953 Judge Tuttle practiced law in Atlanta, except for the years he spent in World War II. Entering active duty from the National Guard as a Lieutenant Colonel, Tuttle commanded an artillery battalion and was wounded on Ie Shima, in hand-to-hand combat following a Japanese night attack.

While his firm specialized in tax law, Tuttle did take some cases outside that area, and evidenced an interest in constitutional law and in civil rights. Tuttle and Sutherland assisted the lawyers of a Black man, Angelo Herndon, arrested for pamphleteering under Georgia's law making incitement to insurrection a capital crime. Eventually, acting on a petition of habeas corpus, the United States Supreme Court overruled the Georgia Supreme Court and declared the law unconstitutional in Herndon v. Lowry, 301 U.S. 242 (1937). In Johnson v. Zerbst, 304 U.S. 458 (1938), Tuttle argued and won, before the United States Supreme Court, a critical early Sixth Amendment (Right to Counsel) case. Tuttle became active in the then-tiny Republican Party of Georgia shortly after his arrival in the state, and was at one point Chairman of the state party. At the 1952 Republican National Convention, Tuttle led the Credentials fight to have his pro-Eisenhower delegation seated over the objections of the traditional, pro-Taft, party organization. His future judicial colleague, John Minor Wisdom, led a similar fight for Louisiana's votes. For this critical assistance in the nomination fight, Tuttle was first appointed General Counsel of the Treasury Department and was later offered the 5th Circuit Judgeship he would hold for the last four decades of his life.

Tuttle was prominent within the legal community, and was well respected by his judicial colleagues. Known for his integrity, he chaired, for many years after retiring to Senior Status, the Advisory Committee on Judicial Activities, which advised federal judges upon ethical questions. Nevertheless, faced with the heated issues of civil rights, the judges of the 5th Circuit became the targets of vocal public attacks, faced the frequent resistance of public officials, state courts, and some federal district judges, and were even forced into a Constitutional near-crisis over the resistance of Mississippi's governor, Ross Barnett, to court orders (see Meredith and Barnett litigation folders). Tuttle was himself accused by Judge Ben Cameron, in 1963, of rigging panel assignments in civil rights cases to favor the liberal wing of the Court - accusations which nearly led to politicized hearings in the Judicial Committee of segregationist Senator James Eastland of Mississippi.

Apart from civil rights matters, the 5th Circuit in Tuttle's years was an already busy court with a rapidly expanding caseload. While he was Chief Judge, and for many years thereafter in support of his successor John R. Brown, Tuttle was deeply involved in judicial organization and administration. He sat by designation with federal courts throughout the country, especially after taking Senior Status, and went to the West Coast, to sit a week each year with the 9th Circuit, through most of the 1970s and 1980s. Tuttle's wife traveled with him, by automobile, to nearly all of his sittings, within and outside of the sprawling 5th Circuit, and they were married for more than 75 years.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of the papers of Elbert P. Tuttle from 1917-1995. The papers include correspondence, docket books, records relating to court administration, case files and opinions, and a small number of personal papers. Very few materials predate 1952, and most coverage begins after 1953-1954. The bulk of the collection is comprised of case files and opinions, 1957-1994. Of particular interest among these files are the records relating to a number of important civil rights related cases from the early 1960s.

The correspondence, 1953-1995, including incoming mail and carbon copy responses, is varied and ranges from fan mail to substantive discussion of social, political, and personal matters. It also documents Tuttle's involvement with several college and university boards, including Cornell, Morehouse, Spelman, the Inter-Denominational Theological Seminary and other parts of the predominantly black Atlanta University Center. There is also correspondence pertaining to law related events and organizations not connected with court administration and to Tuttle's commemorations, anniversaries, and awards.

The papers also include docket books maintained by Judge Tuttle to record conference and en banc vote tallies as well as cases before the 5th/ 11th Circuit from 1954-1990. Also present are records of the administration of the Circuit Court, its courthouses, and Tuttle's functional relation to the court system. The personal papers series is comprised mainly of records and correspondence relating to his military service from 1926-1957 and photographs which document selected activities primarily during the 1950s and 1960s in which Tuttle was involved.

Arrangement Note

Organized into five series: (1) Correspondence, (2) Docket books, (3) Court administration, (4) Case files and opinions, and (5) Personal papers.

Series 1

Correspondence, 1941-1995

Boxes 1-13 and 92-93

Scope and Content Note

The correspondence series of the Elbert P. Tuttle papers is organized into two subseries consisting of alphabetical correspondence, 1941-1994, and subject files, 1936-1995. Of particular interest in these early materials is correspondence relating to Tuttle's role in the Republican Party in Georgia, which Tuttle became very active in because he opposed segregationist policies. Judge Tuttle's early life, his college and law-school years, and his 30-years of legal practice in Atlanta prior to government appointment, are all un-represented here. Correspondence and records relating to his long-term military service may be found in Series 5, Personal files.

The correspondence subseries begins in 1941, but the bulk starts in 1953 when Tuttle became General Counsel to the Eisenhower-administration's Treasury Department and continues after he was appointed to the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in the following year. The correspondence in these files is extremely varied, includes both incoming mail and carbon copies of responses, and ranges from "fan mail" to substantive discussion of social, political, and personal matters. The number of individual correspondents is vast, and, while other judges and lawyers of prominence are well represented, not exclusively from the legal or political communities. The number of files pertaining to commemorations, anniversaries, and awards accelerate into the last years of Tuttle's life.

The subject correspondence also covers a wide range of topics. Particularly well represented are papers regarding Tuttle's involvement with the colleges and universities of which he was a board member, including life long ties to his alma mater, Cornell. Also represented is correspondence documenting a lengthy involvement with Morehouse, Spelman, the Inter-Denominational Theological Seminary, and other parts of the predominantly black Atlanta University Center. The subseries includes such related materials as bulletins and reports printed for the trustees, correspondence with other board members and with college administrators, including Benjamin Mays, as well as materials relating to Tuttle's extensive involvement in the elite communities of Atlanta. Much of this material provides insight into the social functioning of that city in the middle and later portions of the 20th Century.

Law related events and organizations that do not relate to the administration of the federal courts are also included in this series. Subjects include the New York University seminar for federal judges, meetings and correspondence of the American Bar Association and the American Law Institute, and mentoring efforts such as law day events, scholarship contests and the National Moot Court Competition, which document Tuttle's active involvement within the legal community. There are many files in the later years which pertain to the commemoration and recognition of Judge Tuttle and his peers and colleagues, including the Devitt Distinguished Justice Awards, honorary degrees, and courthouse dedications.

Records and correspondence relating to film and literary projects involving the 5th Circuit of the federal courts in the Civil Rights era, such as Jack Bass's books and several oral history projects are also present here.

Arrangement Note

Organized into two subseries: (1.1) Chronological and alphabetical correspondence and (1.2) Subject correspondence.

Series 2
Docket books, 1954-1990
Boxes 14-16

Scope and Content Note

The series consists of loose-leaf docket books, 1954-1990, maintained by Judge Tuttle throughout most of his career as a judge. They include tallies of conference and en banc votes, often with the date, and other brief statements and records of cases before the 5th/11th Circuit from 1954 to 1990, when Tuttle's age began to impair his ability to see or hear oral arguments, and he stopped sitting on panels. The materials are most voluminous during Tuttle's term as Chief Judge from 1960 to 1967.

Arrangement Note

Arranged in chronological order.

Series 3
Court administration, 1960-1995
Boxes 17-36

Scope and Content Note

The series contains records relating to the administration and governance of the court and its courthouses, particularly Judge Tuttle's functional relationship to the 5th/11th Circuit Court. Present here are calendars, communications with court administrators, 11th Circuit Historical Society files, and personnel files for Tuttle's law clerks. There are records documenting Tuttle's participation on judicial committees, notably the Advisory Committee on Civil Rules, 1971-1978, Advisory Committee on Judicial Activities, 1970-1979, Committee on Court Administration, 1973-1977, and the Joint Committee on Judicial Ethics, 1971-1979. Also included are advisory opinions issued by the Advisory Committee on Judicial Activities in response to ethical queries of various federal judges and magistrates from 1970-1979 and Chief Judge's files, including records of matters involving Tuttle in his capacity as administrative overseer of the various judges and clerks within the 5th Circuit from 1960-1967.

Arrangement Note

Organized into four subseries: (3.1) General by subject, (3.2) Committee files, (3.3) Advisory Opinions of the Advisory Committee on Judicial Activities files, and (3.4) Chief Judge's files.

Subseries 3.1
General by subject, 1961-1995
Boxes 17-24

Scope and Content Note

This subseries includes an alphabetically ordered collection of subject folders pertaining to the administration of the Circuit Court and its courthouses, as well as to Judge Tuttle's functional relationship with the 5th/11th Circuit Court and other courts. It includes calendars; statistical case and docket reporting; paperwork from panel assignments within the circuit and from inter-circuit assignments; and communications with the Circuit Executive, Clerk of the Court, Court library, and 11th Circuit Historical Society. Also included, and of particular note, are personnel files for many of Judge Tuttle's law clerks, including correspondence, writing samples by the clerk, and copies of resumes with Judge Tuttle's annotations. There is also a small amount of Tuttle's correspondence with his clerks during and after their clerkships.

Subseries 3.2
Committee files, 1966-1995
Boxes 25-30

Scope and Content Note

This subseries contains materials from Judge Tuttle's extensive service on the administrative committees and governing bodies of the United States courts. It includes materials related to meetings of the 5th and 11th Circuit Judicial Councils and Conferences, and the Judicial Conference of the United States as well as a rich volume of material from the committees appointed by the United States Judicial Conference.

The Judicial Conference of the Circuit consists of all of the judges and magistrates within the Circuit, meeting periodically to discuss management and administrative matters while the Council is composed of an equal number of appeals and district court judges from within the circuit, serving as the administrative government of the Circuit. Both are required by federal statute to meet periodically, and records of those 5th Circuit meetings are present. Also present are materials from the Judicial Conference of the United States. As the governing body for the Judicial branch, it is composed of the Chief Justice of the United States, the Chief Judges of the regional and specialized Courts of Appeal and the Court of International Trade, and district judges elected from each Circuit. The Judicial Conference of the United States performs much of its work through appointed committees composed mainly of various members of the federal judiciary. Tuttle's activity in this work, particularly in the years after he took Senior Status and peaking in the mid-1970s, is documented here.

The bulk of this subseries consists of records and correspondence from committees of the Judicial Conference of which Tuttle was a member. The Advisory Committee on Judicial Activities, which Tuttle chaired for many years, and the Joint Committee chaired by Judges Tuttle and Tamm, are of special note. The Joint Committee is at times referred to as the Joint Committee on Judicial Ethics or, when a more specific purpose was envisioned, as the Joint Committee on the Code of Judicial Conduct. It is here filed as Joint Committee.

There is a great deal of correspondence, including carbon copied outgoing correspondence, in the various committee files, along with drafts, memos, and reports documenting the administrative workings of the United States judicial system.

Subseries 3.3
Advisory Opinions of the Advisory Committee on Judicial Activities files,
1970-1979
Boxes 31-33

Scope and Content Note

The subseries contains advisory opinions, issued by the Advisory Committee on Judicial Activities (nicknamed the "Dear Abby" committee) in response to the ethical queries of various federal judges and magistrates. These are organized alphabetically, generally by the surname of the judge or magistrate, but with a few subject-named opinions inserted into the alphabetical arrangement.

Arrangement Note

Arranged in alphabetical order.

Subseries 3.4
Chief Judge's files, 1960-1968
Boxes 34-36

Scope and Content Note

This subseries includes records for each judge within the 5th Circuit. It is divided into alphabetical groups for the circuit judges and for the district judges and clerks of court in each state. The bulk of the content includes correspondence regarding federal court procedure, the hearing of cases, designations and assignments, and other matters involving the Chief Judge in his capacity as administrative overseer of the various judges and clerks. Materials cover Tuttle's years as Chief Judge, 1960-1967, and were originally divided into an earlier and a later series. They are combined here with a loose chronological division around 1965.

Arrangement Note

Mainly arranged by region, and then in alphabetical order.

Series 4

Case files and opinions, 1957-1994

Boxes 37-91 and 95-96

Scope and Content Note

This series primarily includes files named for cases resulting in opinions by Judge Tuttle from 1957-1994. Files named for judges or groups of judges are also present when their contents relate directly to the decision of law cases and the authoring of opinions.

While the series includes part of an alphabetical grouping from the 1957-1958 term, most of the remaining case files from the early years of Tuttle's judicial career are absent. A number of important civil rights related cases from the early 1960s are represented, but regular case file records do not appear until the 1965-1966 term. The docket-books (Series 2) cover more routine work through these years.

Files are organized by term of court, and arranged alphabetically within terms, leaving folders pertaining to lengthy litigation within the alphabetical series. Dates listed for each case represent the year or range of years the various materials within the folder (briefs, memos, correspondence) are dated. Miscellaneous materials and files of multiple opinions are located at the beginning of each term. For many terms, there are also files named for the other circuit judges of Tuttle's home court. These contain mainly drafts, working texts, and correspondence related to decisions, and often appear to correspond to cases where the named judge wrote for a three judge panel that included Tuttle. These files also are placed before the case named files for each term.

The original order of the materials has been maintained with minor alterations including the slight alphabetic rearrangement and the interfiling of many cases from outside the 5th Circuit for the years after 1965. Also integrated into alphabetical sequences within the terms are materials from the various circuit courts with which Tuttle sat by special designation following his move to Senior Status in June 1968. Tuttle's work as special master in Arizona v. California, a case under the United States Supreme Court's original jurisdiction, is located at the beginning of the materials for the 1981-1982 term to correspond with the date of Tuttle's main report as special master.

During several terms (May 1994-January 1991), files of bench memos were kept together by the week in which they were written rather than as a part of case files. No attempt was made to identify all the memos and place them with the relevant case.

Arrangement Note

Organized into two subseries: (4.1) Case files and opinions and (4.2) Bench memos.

Series 5
Personal papers, 1918-1994
Box 97-100, OP1, AV1

Scope and Content Note

This series consists of a small group of personal papers including correspondence and records documenting Tuttle's long military career, family correspondence, photographs, printed material including clippings about Tuttle, and a videotaped interview with Tuttle that was produced by CNN in 1993. Of particular interest are letters that Tuttle wrote his wife during his service in World War II. Most of the letters are photocopies of the originals, which were destroyed in a fire.

Arrangement Note

Arranged by record type.
