Collection Description

Biographical Note

Thomas Edward Watson, lawyer, editor, politician, was born September 5, 1856 on his grandfather’s plantation near Thomson, Georgia, in Columbia, later renamed McDuffie, County.
He was the son of John Smith and Ann Eliza Maddox Watson. Watson was originally named Edward Thomas, but changed the order during his youth. He enrolled at Mercer University, Macon, Georgia, in 1872, but had to drop out after two years because of lack of funds. Watson taught school and studied law and in October 1875, he was admitted to the Georgia Bar. In November 1876, he began a law practice in Thomson. Watson was elected to the Georgia House of Representatives from McDuffie County in 1882, serving for a year. In 1890 he was elected to Congress on the Farmer's Alliance Platform. During this tenure he supported advanced labor legislation, introduced Alliance reform bills, and introduced a measure to establish the Rural Free Delivery system.

Watson was defeated in the election of 1892 due to gerrymandering in his district. He was also defeated in the election of 1894. In 1896, Watson was nominated as the vice-presidential candidate by the national Populist convention. His party lost the election and Watson retired from politics. While serving in Congress, Watson founded the People's Party Paper in 1891 and continued its publication until 1898. In 1892 he published The People's Party Campaign Book which was subtitled Not a Revolt; It Is a Revolution.

After retiring from political life, Watson resumed his law practice and purchased Hickory Hill, a mansion right outside Thomson. At Hickory Hill he began writing and published many books including The Story of France (1899), Napoleon: A Sketch of His Life, Character, Struggles and Achievements (The Macmillan Company, 1902), The Life and Times of Thomas Jefferson (D.
Appleton and Company, 1903), The Life and Times of Andrew Jackson (publisher unidentified, 1912), Bethany: A Story of the Old South (D. Appleton, 1904). Watson founded Tom Watson's Magazine in 1905 in New York. This publication, renamed Watson's Magazine, continued to be published in New York until the end of 1906. Watson's Jeffersonian Magazine was published in Atlanta from 1907-1911, and then moved Thomson, Georgia. It was renamed Watson's Magazine in 1912 and ceased publication in 1917. He also published a weekly newsletter, Weekly Jeffersonian, from 1907-1917, at which time the United States Post Office permanently suspended his permit.

In his later years, Watson changed affiliation from Populist to Democrat. His views became extreme and he spoke out against Catholicism, Socialism, blacks, Jews, foreigners, U.S.
Participation in World War I. Writing in his Weekly Jeffersonian, he editorialized about the Mary Phagan murder case and the suspected murderer, Leo Frank.

In 1920 Watson was elected to the United States Senate from Georgia, by a wide margin and served until his death. Watson died September 26, 1922 in Chevy Chase, Maryland, of complications from bronchitis. He is buried in the family plot in the Thomson, Georgia, cemetery.

Watson married Georgia Durham, October 9, 1878. This union produced three children, John Durham, Agnes Pearce, and Louise.
Scope and Content Note

This collection consists of correspondence, editorials and articles by Thomas E. Watson, financial records, clippings, and collected materials. The collection contains materials that were given to the Rose Library by Emory student William Carter, dating from 1906-1923. Carter is the grandson of James J. Gordy, Watson's campaign manager. Included in this gift were letters from Watson to Gordy which discuss Watson's view on Charles Crisp, U. S. Representative from the 3rd Congressional District, and particularly his stand on the Leo Frank case; typescript of an editorial by Watson dated February 13, 1913 which discusses the Commissioner of Agriculture; and clipping about the gift to Emory. The provenance for items of correspondence regarding Watson's book The Story of France are unknown. The fragment of a letter from Alice Louise Lytle, Watson's secretary, appears to be to Clifford Near and was given to the library by Ms. Jane Near, sister of the recipient, in 1964. Because of the fragile nature of the materials in folders 1, 2, 4, 5, they have been photocopied for research use. The original items have been restricted and are located in folders 23-26. They are not available for normal research use.

The collection also contains photocopies of correspondence, financial documents, writings by Watson, clippings, and collected material purchased from the Fort Lauderdale (Fla.) Historical Society which retained the original items. These materials relate generally to Watson's real estate interests, Las Olas by the Sea, in Florida, and date from 1907 to ca. 1920. The main recipient of Watson's letters was Frank Stranahan. Also included are financial documents relating to this real estate from or to Georgia Watson.

Arrangement Note

Arranged by record type.
