Collection Description

Biographical Note

John Wesley evangelist and founder of Methodism, was born June 17, 1703, in Epworth, Lincolnshire, England, and died March 2, 1791, in London, England. He was the son of Samuel Wesley (1662-1735), a graduate of Oxford, and a minister of the Church of England and Susanna Annesley Wesley (1669-1742). He was educated at Christ Church College, Oxford (1724); was ordained a deacon in the Church of England (1725); and was elected a fellow of Lincoln College (1726). He eventually embarked upon a new ministry, along with his brother, Charles (b. 1707), which resulted in their separation from the Anglican church; they and other "Methodists" served as itinerant preachers in the British Isles (1741-). Methodists who sailed from Ireland to America (1760) pioneered Methodism in the Americas. John left for Savannah, Georgia in 1735, several months after the death of his father, with the intent to convert the Indians and deepen and regulate the religious life of the colonists. While in Georgia, he began the first Sunday school, at Christ Church, while his brother Charles served in Governor James Oglethorpe's administration. Charles Wesley's music was his greatest contribution to Methodism.

Publication Note

Many letters by John Wesley published in The Letters of the Rev. John Wesley, A.M., Sometime Fellow of Lincoln College, Oxford, edited by John Telford (London: Epworth Press, 1831). The courtship letters of Joseph Benson and Sarah Thompson are published in Emory University Sources and Reprints, series 3, no. 1 (Atlanta: Emory University, 1945).

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of materials relating to John Wesley and the Wesley family from 1734-1864. The materials include correspondence, writings, and photographs and other images of Wesley. The correspondence of John Wesley pertains to church business and theology. The correspondence of Sarah Wesley (b. 1760) is with family and friends (mostly with her mother, Sarah G. Wesley, and her brother, Samuel Wesley) and pertains to family activities, travel, and beliefs. Correspondence (1779-1780) of Methodists Joseph and Sarah T. Benson details their courtship. A later addition of correspondence between Charles Wesley and organist John Langshaw, pertains to Methodism, the American Revolution, and London musicians and music teachers.

The collection also includes three of John Wesley's diaries. The original 1736 diary documents part of his trip to Georgia (1735-1738) with his brother Charles, and is written partially in the cipher they sometimes used in their letters. The other two diaries are photocopies of the 1735 and 1737 volumes held by Methodist Archives in London (which has since been transferred to the University of Manchester). Other materials include Sarah Wesley's personal writings, Sarah G. Wesley's poetic psalms, sermons of John Wesley, a Wesley family genealogy, and music manuscripts. Photographs and other pictures are of Wesley memorabilia, and drawings, paintings, and sculpture of the Wesleys.

Following some correspondence listed in the container list is the parenthetical notation [Telford...] which refers to the volume and page where this particular item may be found in a printed collection of Wesley letters: Telford, John (ed.). The Letters of the Rev. John Wesley, A.M. Sometime Fellow of Lincoln College, Oxford. London: The Epworth Press, 1831. See references are also listed in the container list for correspondence found in the bound volume of correspondence.
